OTTAWA WELCOMES PREMIER MACDONALD Fifteen Injured When Building Is Swept By Flames

Head of British Cabinet Guest In Federal Capital

Premier MacDonald, Greeted on Arrival by Premier King and Others, Will Deliver Address at State Dinner This Evening; Has Several Topics on Which to Confer With Premier King.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Ottawa to-day welcomed Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who arrived for a three-day visit and whose speech at the dinner the Government will give in the Parliament Buildings in his honor this evening is awaited with the keenest interest not only by the leaders in the affairs of Canada who will be present but also by many thousands from the Pacific to the Atlantic who hope to hear his words by radio.

Mr. MacDonald, who at the beginning of a talk with newspaper representatives this forenoon said they "must be very discreet" in questioning him, expressed his thanks to the press for the help it had given him during his visit to the United States and Canada.

He was asked if he would discuss with Premier King a suggestion, Heilfax was drawn to the fact that dispatches from the United States had indicated that would be one of their subjects of discussion.

"I would suggest you take those dispatches with a large grain of salt," said Mr. MacDonald.

He did not know just what he and Mr. King would discuss, he said. They probably would talk over a number of things. That was as near as the Labor Premier would go to indicating the nature of his conference with the Prime Minister of Canada.

Canada-wide Broadcast of Premier's Talk

Premier Ramsay MacDonald's speech at the Federal Government dinner to be tendered him in Ottawa to-night, will be broadcast throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion of Canada, according to arrangements completed to-day. Pacific Coast radio listeners will be able to hear the British statesman through CNRV, the Canadian National Railways station in Vancouver. The mainland station expects to start broadcasting about 6.20 o'clock. Mr. MacDonald's address will be given in the reading-room of the House of Commons. No announcement has yet been made of the subject upon which he will speak. Premier W. L. Mackenzie King will also speak.

Menu Cards Do Not Defeat Him, Says MacDonald

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—Premier MacDonald, interviewed by press representatives this forenoon following his arrival here from Toronto, said he felt very much better than he had in more southern climates.

He was asked how he stood the incessant programme of dinners and luncheons which was mapped out for him. He replied that plain living was his maxim. He did not follow the menu cards. He followed his own good sense. In the north of Scotland, oatmeal had been one of the things which contributed to the health of the community.

"And the Shorter Catechism," interjected one of the correspondents.

Mr. MacDonald agreed with this.

PRAIRIE TOWN FIRE CONQUERED AFTER HARD FIGHT

Weyburn Threatened For a Time; Flour Mill Loss Totals $100,000

Six Men and Pump Sent From Regina to Aid Weyburn Men

Weyburn, Sask., Oct. 17.—Losses estimated to total $100,000 were suffered in a fire which for a time threatened this town of 5,000 people before it was brought under control early this morning after a stiff fight, a large flour mill and grain elevator being reduced to ruins.

Regina firefighters called in to aid the Weyburn crew, helped to halt the advance of the blaze. A large pump manned by Fire Chief White and five other men rushed to the town within a short time after the alarm had been sounded late last night.

The 500 Line flour mill and grain elevator were totally destroyed and the conflagration was advancing toward the town when the firemen placed it under control.

Weyburn is ninety miles southeast of Regina.

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 17.—Health insurance was considered at this forenoon's session of the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities here. A resolution approving the action of the Provincial Government in appointing a committee to report on health insurance was passed.

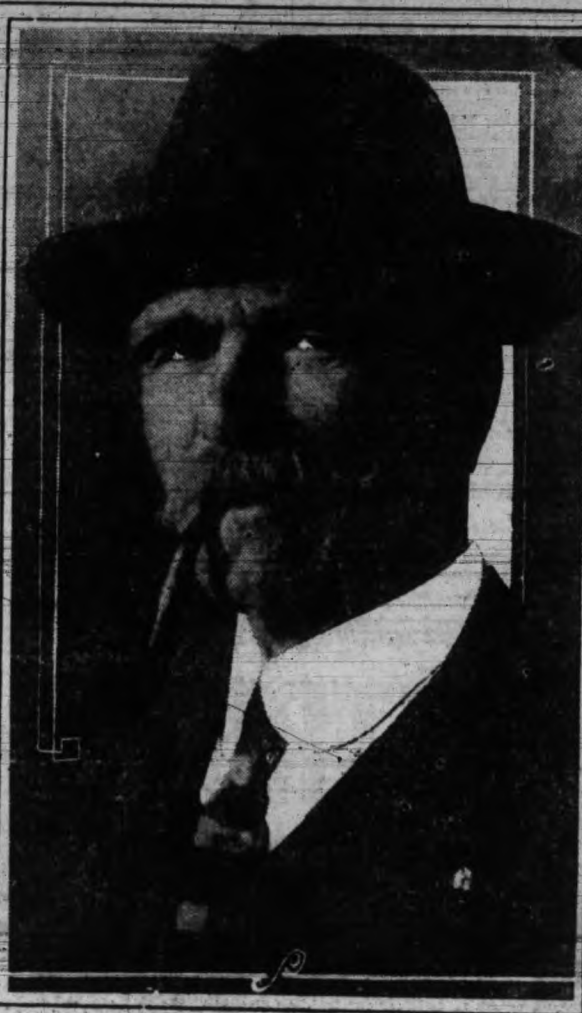

The resolution, prepared by Acting Mayor John Bennett of Vancouver and Reeve Tom Reid of Surrey, also urged the Government should consider with the health insurance question a proposal that maternity benefits should be incorporated in the scheme.

The motion also reiterated a resolution passed Wednesday that the Provincial Government should be asked to assume control of all hospitals in British Columbia.

FAMOUS OLD-TIME FIGHTER PASSES

LATE FRANK P. SLAVIN

Frank Slavin, One Of World's Finest Fighters, Is Dead

One of Last Links Between Days of Bare Knuckle and Gloved Contests Passes in Vancouver To-day After Lingering Illness; Was Regarded as One of Most Colorful and Rugged Fighters Ever Known; Blazed Trails in Yukon and Served Overseas.

Frank P. Slavin, famous heavy-weight prizefighter of three decades ago, died in Vancouver this morning after a lingering illness. The late Mr. Slavin, who was sixty-eight years of age, passed away in the Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

Upon his return from overseas Slavin took up his residence in Victoria, remaining here until two years ago, when he moved to Vancouver. While in Victoria, Mr. Slavin, a giant of a man, was a familiar figure, and his death removes one of the last of the old-time bare knuckle fighters, as well as a prospector, who staged many mineral claims in this Province.

CONNECTING LINK
Slavin was one of the few surviving links between the days of the London prizefighting rules, when men fought savagely with their bare fists, and the era when the Marquis of Queensberry introduced the padded gloves and introduced a less brutal sport. He wore the crown of heavy-weight champion of the world, but, as Slavin often used to say, that was because John L. Sullivan refused to meet him. Slavin (Concluded on Page 3)

JEFFERSON QUEEN IN CITY TO-DAY

Trip to Victoria Is Prize For Most Popular Port Townsend Girl

Will Be Guest of Junior Chamber at Supper Meeting To-night

Pretty blonde sixteen-year-old Pernille Norby of Port Townsend, crowned Queen of Jefferson County because of her beauty, charm and intelligence arrived in Victoria this morning to enjoy a few days' holiday here as one of the prizes in the contest which she won by an overwhelming vote.

Her only public appearance at any function will be at the supper meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at which she will be a guest with her mother, Mrs. Peter Norby, this evening.

SEEING VICTORIA
Miss Norby and her mother are guests of Stephen Jones at the Empress Hotel during their stay in Victoria. To-day as guests of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines they drove over the Malahat and back, and to-morrow they will tour over the Gray Line routes. Both are enthusiastic swimmers, and A. Cowlishaw, manager of the Crystal Garden, has invited them to swim at any time during their stay. Sunday they will attend the services at Christ Church Cathedral.

TO WRITE ABOUT CITY
Queen Pernille being the Port Townsend Eagles' candidate, Victoria Eagles gave her a rousing welcome this morning.

"Victoria is wonderful, and we have been given a delightful reception," she said. "The thrill of winning the contest was hardly greater than the thrill a holiday here promises to be. I have to write about Victoria for The Port Townsend paper when I return. At first I was afraid I wouldn't know what to say. Now I am afraid they won't have space to print everything I would like to say."

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (By Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Canada will be represented at the five-power naval reduction conference in London next January by her own delegates, as will the other entities which compose the British Commonwealth of Nations. No arrangements which will be binding on Canada will be entered into without the knowledge and consent of this Dominion. Final agreements with respect to the disarmament problem depend entirely on the London conference, which the United States, Japan, France and Italy have signified their intention of attending.

To newspapermen who gathered around him at Government House this morning Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who arrived in Ottawa from Toronto shortly after 5 o'clock, gave the above information.

Finding of Oil-soaked Rags and Broken Kerosene Bottle After Blaze in Old Seattle Building, Suggesting Incendiarism, Is Investigated by Fire Marshal.

Seattle, Oct. 17.—Fire, which authorities believe may have been of incendiary origin, swept the Portland Hotel here to-day and resulted in eight deaths and injuries to fifteen persons.

Only one of the bodies had been identified this afternoon—that of John Brink, twenty-nine, son of Rev. H. A. Brink of Lynden, Wash. Six other white men were burned to death or suffocated in the dense smoke which blocked their escape from the old three-story structure.

Reports that oil-soaked rags and a broken bottle which smelled of kerosene had been found on the stairway where the fire started were being investigated by the fire marshal this afternoon.

Fear that several Japanese children might have perished in the building was dispelled when it was learned Mr. and Mrs. K. Mayeda, who were operating the place, had no children. The preceptors, who had three children, sailed for Japan several months ago.

Mrs. Mayeda received a fracture of the leg and internal injuries when she jumped from a third-story window.

Joseph McNamara, forty-seven, a fireman, suffered a fracture of one shoulder and a possible skull fracture when he fell through a skylight.

The others who were injured are suffering from severe burns, inhaling of smoke and shock.

The building, one of the oldest in an old part of town was surprisingly little damaged, as the blaze was extinguished within a few minutes after fire apparatus had reached the scene. The loss is estimated at $7,500.

Fire apparatus was at the scene three minutes after the alarm was turned in. Three firemen overcome by smoke were rescued and restored by critical injury, as were some of the men living in the hotel. There was very little blaze, but the dense smoke made firefighting difficult.

The hotel, an old structure of brick construction on First Avenue South, below Yeeler Way, the oldest section of Seattle, was operated by K. Mayeda, Japanese, who after wife was critically injured when she leaped from a third-story window.

Judgment Against Company Is Upheld

Melbourne, Oct. 17 (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuters).—The Full High Court, by a majority decision, has confirmed the conviction of the firm of Babcock and Wilcox, the Australian branch of the noted English engineering firm, in connection with the Sydney municipal scandal. The firm had been ordered to pay a fine of $3,000 and to pay to the city of Sydney the sum of $10,000 as a result of the finding that contracts from the city's electrical department were corruptly awarded. S. Y. Maling, former manager of the municipal electrical department, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the same case.

Victoria bank clearings for the week ended to-day show a gain of more than $100,000 a day over the figures for the corresponding week of last year. Saskatchewan for a week ending to-day, $3,622,139; same week last year, $7,816,571; increase, $776,288.

GRAIN SHIPMENTS HEAVY, LOADING RESTRICTIONS MADE

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—Restrictions had been placed to-day against loading grain for Government elevators on both the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways, but the prairie and lakehead storage position remained virtually unchanged. Prairie elevators held an added million bushels of grain, and due to heavy steamer shipments yesterday, lakehead storage dropped perceptibly.

Effective at midnight, a new order will restrict loadings for the Government elevator at Edmonton, which now holds 1,038,000 bushels in relation to its capacity of 2,500,000 bushels. It is stated by Canadian National.

ANCIENT ESKIMO CULTURE IS DISCOVERED IN ALASKA

Washington, Oct. 17 (Associated Press).—Another chapter in present-day knowledge of a "golden age" of Eskimo culture, more than one thousand years old, but newly discovered, was added to-day by Henry H. Collins Jr., Smithsonian scientist, on his return from a five-month exploration of northern Alaska. Buried in an artificial "mound" of refuse, built up twenty feet in the centuries of existence of a thriving village on the southeast end of St. Lawrence Island, he found rich material of the most ancient and highly developed Eskimo culture known.

Thousands of specimens of ivory and bone implements, weapons, ornaments, pottery and wooden artifacts also were found.

Centuries ago a village had been reaped on the flat sandy beach, he said, and, as kitchen refuse accumulated, old dwellings were abandoned and new ones raised on the artificial foundation.

How long the process kept up no one knows. The "mound," now twenty feet in its total depth, grew higher until, in 1878 and 1879, famine and epidemic wiped out the native population.

Through the twenty-foot layer the scientist traced the old culture, as he discovered in 1926 by Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, noted Smithsonian anthropologist.

Repairs Delay Soviet Fliers Day At Seattle

The Russians hope to resume their flight to-morrow.

They arrived here Sunday from Waterfall, Alaska, where they were delayed a week after being forced down because of motor trouble.

PROSPECTOR GETS LOST IN SKYSCRAPER

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Sandy McIntyre, prospector, got lost in one of Toronto's skyscrapers. He climbed out of a window on the sixteenth floor and descended the fire escape.

The sight of Sandy with his bushy beard and bushy clothes climbing down the escape attracted the attention of a woman. She thought he was a burglar and gave the alarm. Sandy was standing on the bottom of the fire escape wondering if he was expected to jump the last twelve feet or so when the men arrived. Explanations followed and the old prospector initiated into the mysteries of modern elevators.

During the meeting Hon. W. Atkinson, E. D. Barrow, J. E. Guiney and others spoke of the impossibility of enforcing the act without help from the Government in the form of police assistance. It was stated Chinese and many white growers were evading the act and not paying the levy, and that it was practically impossible for the inspector to keep track of the many

Maritimes Wish To Ship More of Their Potatoes to Prairies

St. John, N.B., Oct. 17.—"It is fair to say the people of this Dominion have not been well informed with regard to the political and economic arrangements which were made at Confederation, and that in this respect they have been deceived to promote the interests of Upper Canada."

In these words A. Patterson of St. John, chairman of the Maritime Transportation Commission, expressed the text and theme of his address before the Maritime Board of Trade yesterday afternoon on "Contractual Transportation Rights of the Maritime Provinces."

As a result of the increased movement of maritime potatoes through special temporary low freight rates, the transportation committee hopes, it was stated yesterday, to convince railway that there is a permanent market in the west for Maritime potatoes, a market which the commissioner believes would be developed rapidly by the permanent establishment of favorable rates.

IMMIGRATION FROM EUROPE DEPRECATED

Tom Moore Scores Actions of Railways in Bringing Settlers to Canada

Has Great Affect on Labor Situation He Tells Local Council

Problems facing working men of Canada to-day, and the work which was being done by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to solve them were outlined before a meeting of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council last night in the Chamber of Commerce by Tom Moore, president of the Canadian Congress.

"In dealing with questions regarding the trades and labor unions, I attempt to give advice to anyone," said Mr. Moore.

While everyone was aiming for a closer union of Canadian provinces, there were many differences in the complex and their industrial outlook, he added, outlining the characteristics of the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia.

"The Middle West, as we call it, is becoming highly industrialized; he remarked, speaking of the opening of mineralized ore in Northern Ontario.

"MOST ENGLISH" British Columbia he termed as the "most English province" of the Dominion.

"When we realize all these differences we see that perhaps a greater problem faces those in the labor movement in Canada than in other sections of the world," he said.

Settlement of large land areas by foreigners in Canada was deprecated by Mr. Moore as another difficulty for labor.

"Notwithstanding these difficulties I think the labor movement of Canada can hold its head as high as any of any other country," he declared.

KYOTO CONFERENCE

With regard to the Kyoto conference, Mr. Moore stated this was the third party to be held by the Institute of Pacific Relations. This organization was not a formal one and not governmental. It was a group of people representing various aspects of national life in the countries bordering on the Pacific Ocean.

"A tribute was paid to the Labor movement of Canada when I was asked to attend this conference," he added.

Mr. Moore discussed the work of the International Labor Congress at Geneva. Round table conferences of this group which he had attended had resulted in great benefit to the industrial life of several European countries. Moreover, the meeting of all nationalities had created bodies of men in all countries whose feeling of goodwill would make very difficult another such situation as arose prior to 1914.

Turning to the work of the Trades and Labor Congress, Mr. Moore declared it was a national organization, constituted largely of members of international trade unions.

A CANADIAN ORGANIZATION

"The Trades and Labor Congress is governed by the decisions of its annual convention, and models its policies from resolutions passed at the conventions," he declared. "I wish to disabuse your mind with regard to ideas which have arisen that the congress is governed in accordance with the needs of labor in any other nation, owing to its international aspect."

Discussing the Mothers' Allowance Act, which provides for maintenance of a worker's family in the event of his death, the labor congress felt that such should be made federal in its scope instead of provincial. Amendment of the British North America Act would be necessary to do such a thing.

OLD-AGE PENSIONS

The Old-Age Pension Act he termed one of the greatest pieces of social legislation yet enacted. Up to the present "this" "old" provinces' west of the Quebec boundary had adopted this legislation, he added, congratulating British Columbia as the first province to enact this legislation. In this connection he paid tribute to the work of the late Hon. John Oliver for his efforts along these lines.

Although the Old-Age Pension Act under both federal and provincial administration, the sum of $20 per month was really inadequate to keep an aged worker in comfort. Moreover, through the residence limits, a worker who had moved through necessity from one province to another would not receive the full benefit of the act. Before moving for the amendment of this inadequate measure, it was necessary to build up a national feeling in its favor, he said.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Another aim of the Labor Congress was unemployment insurance, he continued, outlining progress made along this line. Both British Columbia and Alberta had favored the "opinion" being the only two provinces which had shown any interest in the matter.

The primary reason for unemployment insurance was to reduce the volume of unemployment, and secondary to shift the burden of unemployment from the individual to the community.

By placing the greater burden of unemployment insurance on industry, it would prevent the inducement of workers from other countries to displace those already employed in Canada, he said.

IMMIGRATION

The haphazard way in which the Federal Government had allowed casual immigration of unneeded labor into Canada brought upon this Government the responsibility of doing something about unemployment, he said.

Mr. Moore then took up the question of immigration. Continuous discussion and thought had been given this matter by the Labor Congress for over twenty years, and his optimism, while not perhaps the last word and final solution, were worthy of deep consideration.

The speaker scored the action of railroads in bringing settlers to flood the labor market.

"We have maintained," he said, "that immigration should be entirely divorced from those who seek to profit by selling transportation tickets. Moreover, we think immigration should be divorced from political administration."

NO SUBSIDIES

"We are not opposed to any worker coming into this country who is physically fit and able and who is unhampered by subsidies which will mortgage his earnings for years to come," he declared.

Many native-born Canadians had been forced to go south of the line to seek employment because of the unfair competition of Central Europeans, he added.

D. P. Plunkett, M.P., and J. D. McNiven, Deputy Minister of Labor for British Columbia, attended the gathering.

E. S. Woodward, chairman, who introduced Mr. Moore, spoke of his previous visits to this city and referred to his present mission to Kyoto, Japan.

where he will attend the Institute of Pacific Relations conference.

Mr. Woodward, during his introductory address mentioned the fact that the Trades and Labor Congress was not a political group. It was merely an organization for the protection of labor's interests and for the study of labor problems.

Old age pension plans and the minimum wage question were also mentioned by the chairman.

"They work while you sleep"

When the bowels need help there is nothing like Cascarets; nothing more efficient, nothing so good for the system. Any doctor can confirm these facts.

Candy Cascarets give you pure cascara in a most pleasant form. Take one tonight. See how fine you feel all next day. Without discomfort and without harmful effects this gentle laxative cleanses the whole thirty feet of bowels.

Cascarets never produce that nauseous feeling usually associated with the use of laxatives. And their action is so natural that there is no danger of forming the laxative habit. You can take them as often as you please—or give them freely to children or old folks.

A coated tongue or a laden breath is a signal for a candy Cascarets. Or a sick headache, or any sluggish feeling; any time you believe the liver and bowels are not functioning fully, Cascarets will sweep away accumulations in the lower bowel. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice, making them the ideal laxative for children.

Full medical endorsement proves their principle is right; the use of 20 million packages a year proves their effectiveness.

trilled Sullivan from Australia to London and as far as St. Louis Mo. before he was finally granted an interview.

The interview took place in March, 1891, in Sullivan's hotel room in St. Louis. The champion at that time had reached the peak of his career and was taking a fling at acting, playing the leading role in "Honest Hearts and Willing Hands." Slavin was put on by Sullivan because the champion said he was not taking any interest in fighting, but promised that, should he return to the ring, he would give Slavin his first shot at the title. When Sullivan returned from an unsuccessful trip "down under" he issued a triple challenge to Slavin, Jim Corbett and Charlie Mitchell, the famous English battler. Slavin made a great effort to get the bout, but at the time he was matched to fight the famous negro, Peter Jackson, at the opening bout at the National Sporting Club in London. Sullivan insisted that Slavin break his contract for the Jackson bout as he was unwilling to fight either a negro or anyone who was named a negro. Slavin's backers refused to break the contract with Jackson and the "Sydney Cornstalk," as Slavin was known, had to pass up the chance. Corbett won the right to challenge Sullivan and in the fight the championship changed hands.

COLORFUL FIGHTER

While Slavin never wore the crown he was always regarded as one of the most colorful, rugged and slashing two-fisted fighters the game ever knew. His activities were not restricted solely to the ring, for he blazed trails in the Yukon during the stampede of 1898, and enlisted as a private in the 67th Western Scots, C.E.F., when fifty-four years of age, and served in the trenches in the World War.

Slavin was born in New South Wales in 1861, and took to boxing as a form of play while working in the mining camps in Australia. He won the amateur heavyweight championship of the Commonwealth, and while in Queensland, encountered Martin Powers, champion of that state, in a barroom. Powers poked fun at Slavin and the young amateur champion wanted a fight then, but it was finally arranged to settle the dispute at the race track for a purse, and Slavin turned professional.

Slavin's rise was rapid, and he was soon regarded as equal to Peter Jackson, the great negro. When Martin Costello of the United States went to Australia in 1896, seeking a bout, Slavin was selected to uphold the boxing prestige of his country. This was the first time an American fighter had ever visited Australia, and as Costello had lasted five rounds with Sullivan, much interest was aroused over the meeting.

The fight was staged under most romantic conditions. The police refused to allow the fight, and the backers took the principals out to the woods overnight. But in the morning the mounted police showed up and dispersed the party. Again they tried and this time Slavin knocked out Costello in eight rounds. Slavin, who proved one of the most traveled fighters of all time, went to New Zealand and knocked out their champion, Harry Lang, who was half Maori.

With all his adventures abroad in Australia, Slavin went to England and was matched with Jim Smith, the British champion. They appeared under the London prize rules, on a gentleman's estate at Oshott, Bedfordshire. It was a wild fight, with both men wearing spiked shoes to hold their footing on the turf. Smith had a number of Birmingham hooligans along with him, and after Slavin had badly beaten Smith, the hooligans broke down the ring and the fight ensued. This was the last fight under the London prize rules, the date being December 23, 1899. Jake Kilrain and Sullivan claimed to have appeared in the last prize rule fight but it was held July 9, 1899, at New Orleans, five months earlier.

BECOMES POPULAR

Slavin became quite popular in England and was in great demand for bouts. He was matched with Big Jack McAuliffe of Detroit, "no was looked upon as much better man to Sullivan in the United States. Slavin knocked out McAuliffe in the second round and both were arrested for participating in a prize-fight. The future of boxing depended on the court decision. The boxers won and out of it came that great institution, the National Sporting Club of London, which has done much to foster the ring sport.

Slavin was selected to appear in the opening bout at the new club. His opponent was Peter Jackson, also of Australia. It was at this time Slavin made his trip to the United States to try to bind the match with Sullivan but was barred because he was matched with the negro. Slavin suffered defeat at the hands of Jackson in the eighth round in a very vicious fight. He tried to get a return bout but failed.

Slavin invaded America and fought in New York against many of the prominent heavyweights of that time, including Peter Maher, the fighting Irishman. He went to San Francisco, where he heard of the gold strike in the Klondike. His manager at that time was the late Col. Joe Boyle. The pair went into the Yukon and spent many years. While there Slavin engaged in several fights, his most interesting being with the late Frank Gotch, heavyweight wrestling champion. Gotch thought he could box and agreed to desist from wrestling tactics. Slavin hit Gotch so many times that the wrestler lost his temper, picked up Slavin and buried him out of the ring.

After many years in the Yukon, Slavin came south and settled in Victoria. In 1915 he enlisted with the Western Scots, C.E.F., and went overseas. He was fifty-four years of age at the time but his fine physical condition enabled him to pass the medical tests without any trouble. He died of grey moustache and clipped his hair. After serving for many months on the Western Front he was finally invalided to England.

PHOTOGRAPHERS AT WORK
When the correspondents arrived at Government House, the British Premier, with his daughter, Isabel, Lord and Lady Willingdon, Premier King and other prominent persons were facing the cameras.

Mr. MacDonald looked happy and was smiling and when he entered Government House he confessed to "feeling much more at home in the Ottawa weather." He came from the North of Scotland, he said, where there often were biting winds.

The Labor leader reiterated the statement that the purpose of his visit on this continent was not to come to agreement, but rather to create an atmosphere which would be favorable for further conferences on naval disarmament.

The question embraced much more than the attitude of two powers. What the Labor Government of Great Britain wanted was a world agreement on disarmament which would result in world pacification.

"I suppose it goes without saying you found President Hoover sympathetic in every way," was the reply.

WORLD PROBLEMS
Then the Labor Prime Minister was asked why he had come over to the United States to discuss disarmament rather than approach one of the other great powers. He replied that until Great Britain had obtained some assurance on disarmament with the United States it would have been of no use to call a general conference. In 1924 the world had been confronted with the problem of European settlement. Now it was confronted with a larger issue, the problem of world settlement. The one thing which must be settled at present was the condition of the world mind on disarmament.

PEACE MISSION
Mr. MacDonald declined politely to discuss such questions as the holding of an Empire economic conference in Ottawa. He pointed out he was at present specializing on peace. There were British departments of governments which were working "full steam ahead" on problems which were of a domestic nature. While he was attending to his special mission, other Ministers, such as Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal, were engaged on these problems. But, just now, said the Premier, he proposed to concentrate on the work which had inspired his visit.

He hoped that as the result of Mr. Thomas's visit to Canada, the Government of Great Britain would give "its business sense" to solving the economic problems which confronted the nation.

Mr. MacDonald's programme for this afternoon included a trip to Premier King's country home.

ARRIVAL IN OTTAWA
Ottawa, Oct. 17 (By Canadian Press Staff Writer)—The capital of Canada to-day welcomed Great Britain's Prime Minister. When the special train bearing Rt. Hon. Ramsey MacDonald, his daughter Isabel and members of their party reached Ottawa from Toronto shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, Premier King, members of the Federal Cabinet, representatives from the legations and Sir William Clark, British High Commissioner in Canada, were on hand to greet them. There was no ceremony of any kind beyond handshaking and expressions of pleasure at the safe arrival of the Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Through lines of policemen, the party was escorted to the station entrance, where cars were waiting. Mr. MacDonald and his daughter stepped into one of them, members of their party followed and the cars started for Government House. Mr. MacDonald and his daughter to be guests there for the three days of their visit here.

THE DOMINION AND EDUCATION

BURNABY'S DELEGATES TO THE ANNUAL GATHERING OF THE UNION OF BRITISH COLUMBIA MUNICIPALITIES AT HARRISON HOT SPRINGS PRESENTED THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

"Whereas, the financing of schools is ever increasing the burden on municipalities and cities, and
"Whereas, the municipalities and cities receive no assistance for primary and secondary education with exception of technical education from the Federal Government;
"Resolved, that this convention press the claim of the municipalities and cities for a grant on a per capita basis, and that the sitting members of the various ridings in the province be memorialized to press this claim for Federal aid for educational purposes."

It is obvious from the terms of this proposal that the Burnaby delegates are not familiar with the constitutional history and conditions of Canada. In the first place, our constitution gives to the provinces control over education, and therefore they must find the money for this purpose. This right always has been vigorously maintained by them.

In the second place, it follows that if the Dominion Government were to accede to such a request from the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, it would have to put all the other provinces on a similar basis. In addition to that, of course, monetary contributions for primary and secondary education from the Federal treasury obviously would have to be accompanied either by partial or complete control by a Federal department. This is the last thing the provinces are looking for. It would involve the revival of all the old and vexing controversies of bilingualism and separate schools—a guarantee in itself that a resolution of the Burnaby type would not be considered for a second by the Dominion Government.

The Federal plan for the assistance of technical education is in a different category altogether. It took the form of a special grant of $10,000,000, of which the provinces could avail themselves on a contributory basis. The term of years in which this was operative, incidentally, ended last March, and there is very little likelihood that any further aid under this head will be forthcoming.

BRITISH INTEREST IN CANADA

INCREASING EVIDENCE CONTINUES to be given of accumulating interest on the part of British industrialists and investors in Canadian enterprises. The indications are that the high degree of Canadian prosperity, the brisk activity apparent in all phases of industry, the continued industrial establishment on the part of the United States, and the ceaseless flow of capital through many channels from that country, as well as the closer investigation of Canadian conditions by personal visit, are awakening the people of Great Britain to a greater consciousness of Canadian opportunity at the present time. The mass of evidence would induce a conviction that from now on Canada may expect a more intensified interest in her development with the movement of a greater volume of industrial and investment funds from across the ocean. The foregoing comments appear in the October issue of "Agricultural and Industrial Progress in Canada," published by the colonization and development department of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

A steady flow of British capital to Canada is inevitable, in the opinion of Lord Queensborough, prominent British industrialist and financier, and closely associated with various Canadian trusts in England, who was recently in Canada studying investment opportunities at first hand. "From my own experience," he stated, "there is a very strong revival of interest in Canada as a country of investment, and a very sincere appreciation of the development which is going on not in any one section of the country, but throughout the whole Dominion. Canada will get a great deal of British capital, for in the Mother Country they are rapidly awakening to a consciousness of the possibilities here, and there is now available more British capital than before."

Signs have become frequent of British capital working unobtrusively for entry into Canadian development. Widespread interest was occasioned over the recent announcement that Old Country capital was entering the tin field in Manitoba, in the find of which alone considerable significance was felt to attach. According to reports, certain properties in the area of discovery, about seventy miles from Winnipeg, have been taken over as a result of investigation quietly made.

Increasing interest is likewise apparent in Canadian industrial establishments, and there is evidence of a more general and clearer realization of the strategic movement of United States business upon the Canadian market through the establishment of branch plants. It is officially estimated that between 600 and 700 United States branch factories have now located upon Dominion soil, and they still continue to come, whereas the number of such British plants is comparatively small. The secretary of the Incorporated Sales Managers of Great Britain, on his return from a recent visit to Canada, was most outspoken in this connection. "Our unhappy position in the Canadian market is largely our own fault," he stated. "British manufacturers should take a leaf from the American's book, study the Canadian market at first hand, and adapt their goods to meet Canadian consumption." This is the point; Canadian consumers know what they want and are not disposed to take kindly the advice which seeks to change their minds in this regard. It is gratifying to learn, however, that this association has organized a tour of British businessmen which is touring Canada for the purpose of investigating the Canadian market.

THE MOTOR DEATH TOLL

EVERY WEEK IN BRITISH COLUMBIA the motor car is responsible for the death of more than one person. Mr. Patrick Philip, Deputy Minister of Public Works, included this statement in a paper which he read to the delegates to the Good Roads League convention at Harrison Hot Springs on Monday. In part explanation of this alarming weekly toll of human life, he declared that the number of motor vehicles in the province had increased from 32,900 in 1921 to 85,900 in 1928, while the approximate number of automobiles per mile of road had risen from two to five, or 150 per cent. in the same period. To this also had to be added the tourist cars entering British Columbia in ever-increasing numbers, the total for 1928 being 261,808.

Many forms of human progress have to be paid for with human lives. The modern form of transportation is one of them. But it also must be remembered that there were fatalities when the horse and buggy held sway on the highways of the province. Such accidents as did happen in those days may not have been as violent as those to which we have become accustomed in this mechanized age. They were accidents, nevertheless, and many of them were due to carelessness. The somewhat startling statement which Mr. Philip has made, however, is a reminder that upon motorists and pedestrians alike the need for co-operation is more insistent than ever. Too many chances are being taken. Ordinary precaution is all that is necessary to avoid most accidents.

THE OLD AND THE NEW

WHAT BEGAN WHEN PREMIER MAC-Donald and General Dawes met one another in a little Scottish house—"with all the windows open and newspaper photographers 'popping' away at us"—and continued last week by the Rapidan and in the White House between the British Prime Minister and President Hoover, has inspired Mr. Henry Leach, in the October issue of Chambers's Journal, to contrast the old and new diplomacies.

Expressing the view that Anglo-American friendship, "politically the most important thing in the world," now has entered upon a stage of reality not before achieved, Mr. Leach pays his respects to the men whom Washington has sent to London as Ambassadors. Considered as a class or a succession, they have constituted "the most able, sensible, and, within their boundaries, benevolent set of men to be found in the whole history of diplomacy and government, largely because they have been chosen for their human and business or common-sense merit, and have lacked any special diplomatic training—with all the pretences, trickery and delay it so often cultivates—such as in Europe is considered necessary for work of this kind." From this point, the writer in question launches into an incisive exposure of the old method of international dealing as practiced by the old diplomatic school. He says in part:

The European style of diplomatist is taught never to be frank and never direct, and it is stated and uttered as a principle that the opposite may be read for any statement made at the beginning of negotiations, so that in this tedious and wasteful process the proper or desired position is reached by means of an apparent forcing or yielding. This is the whole art of diplomacy, to put forward the proposition that white is black, and then by cunning, tact, a meticulous regard for form and usage, a grand display of dignity, adjustments, stealthy concessions, to reach an agreement with the other party, explained obscurely, with exceptions and conditions upon numerous crossed sheets, that white is as it was, thus closing what are declared to be "successful negotiations," harmony resulting, new treaties on this basis being established, and the diplomats praised and rewarded for their acumen and skill. The managers of the great department stores in London and New York, these able and glorified shopkeepers, might have reached a more useful conclusion, in a business-like and common-sense way, in an afternoon's discussion. Signs exist that the old diplomacy, which did not die with the war, but rose again abundantly and aggressively, like a cankerous weed, is now really being despatched. The world's peace is unsafe with it. The greatest war have been directly caused by it. More necessary even than disarmament is it to banish that hateful old diplomacy. A Yorkshireman at The Hague flabbergasted the European diplomats by saying what he and his country thought, instead of saying some things different, and, cleverly pretending.

Mr. Leach concludes this part of his article with the view that the auguries will be very good when the principle of universal application of common-sense is established.

AIRS AND GRACES

The Manchester Guardian

There is something not altogether reassuring about an advertisement which promises that the art of "graceful driving" will be imparted to "lady motorists." In such matters handsomeness is as handsome does; the most elegant curve imaginable will fail in its effect if it finishes up with a prone pedestrian or a crash into somebody else's number plate. As for hand signals from the female sex, already they are often graceful but ambiguous; they would do credit to a ballerina, but fail to make it clear what the car in front is going to do next.

Perhaps that is the kind of thing which will be corrected in the proposed course for graceful driving. At any event, the poor pedestrian seems entitled to murmur:

When they put you through your paces,
Lady, do remember this:
That the noblest act of grace is Giving things like me a miss!

Loose Ends

The theatre season brings its usual tribulations in the dark—but gets off to a good start—a passenger on the stranded Empress tells an incredible story—and Private Ringhofer is reminded of the war.

By H. B. W.

NOW THAT the theatre season has started—and auspiciously, too, with a very fine English comedy company and Sir Harry Lauder himself—we have again with us the lowest form of life. The lowest form of life, as every theatregoer knows, is the person who arrives fashionably late so that he or she may walk between the audience and the play, and thus be adequately observed. Except for old gentlemen who chew peppermints there is nothing so distressing as to have a fashionable couple stride over your legs in the dark while you are trying to hear what the play is all about; and the look of well-fed, perfect composure and cold-blooded insult which these people invariably wear justifies homicide in any form. Unfortunately, however, homicide is inconvenient in a theatre, and the best you can do is thrust your legs out, kick the intruders' shins and tell them up if possible. It is some satisfaction to harass them in this way while looking intently in the direction of the stage, but it is not enough to compensate you for missing the best laugh in the play or losing the thread of the story altogether.

FOR THIS reason the management of the excellent local playhouse would do well to copy the practice of larger cities and refuse to allow anyone to enter between acts. After a few of the more fashionable folk of the village dalled too long over the coffee and cocktails a few times and stood out in the foyer until the second act they would turn up in future before the end of the overture. Unfashionable people seldom offend, for they do not dally over their coffee and have no object in appearing conspicuous. In some past seasons they used to delay the play until late comers could arrive, a practice which encouraged them to come later and later. Apparently that is not being done this year, but if Mr. Denham, the able manager, would go further and protect his theatre from invasion except between acts countless Victorians would rise up and call him blessed. This would be nice for Mr. Denham and the rest of us.

DESPITE THESE annoyances the theatre season has got away to a splendid start here, judging by the size of the audiences which greeted John Drinkwater's "Bird in Hand" and Sir Harry's jolly show. If such support is maintained, Canada should continue to enjoy the presence of good British companies, a priceless boon which many western cities on the other side sadly lack.

THERE IS nothing finer than an experienced Broadway cast, but Broadway casts now-a-days seldom go on the road. It is too expensive and the competition of the talkies is too keen. The English companies which reach this ultimate Thule of the theatrical world are usually of the very best that England has to offer in serious drama. But so far as I can remember, while the English companies usually excel in plays requiring a small company of real artists they do not compare with the American girl-and-music shows where the cast is large and the properties elaborate. There is no one on this continent to equal the great Sir Harry in his own field, but if an American producer had been handling his recent show here one ventures to think it would have had far more verve. There were waits between his songs and a certain lack of finish in the staging which you would hardly expect in a company headed by so great an artist. I suppose on this continent we live so fast that we have grown unreasonably restive and want our entertainment fired at us as out of a machine gun.

THE MOST remarkable feature of the Empress of Canada's recent grounding seems to have escaped marine editors and salvage operators. It was not the extraordinary position of the great ship which had nosed almost into a farmer's woodshed, nor even the success of the salvors in floating her out again. It was the solemn statement of a passenger to this newspaper that when the Empress struck, the shock was so light that it wouldn't have knocked a cocktail glass from one's hand.

THAT assertion will stand a good deal of illuminating. This column has yet to see a shock that would knock a cocktail glass from the hand of any experienced holder. It is possible that a shock might be sufficient to make an experienced cocktail holder crush his glass in his hand, but that he would drop it under provocation is incredible. The natural instinct of a cocktail drinker is to clutch his glass more firmly whenever its safety is jeopardized.

I HAVE SEEN cocktail drinkers hold on to their glasses under far greater shocks than that caused by the grounding of the Empress—greater even than the shock which would be caused if the Empress were to blow up into small pieces. Men have been known before now to wake up next morning still holding their cocktail glass. Any man who has held a cocktail glass under the stress of an ordinary respectable party, where six saxophones, a drum and several hundred people are all trying to outdo one another in not going to drop a glass merely because he is shipwrecked; that is, not until he has extracted the contents thereof.

AMAZING THINGS happen down in the southeast corner of Europe to make the world wonder whether the Great War taught the people of those places anything at all. From Vienna came recently a little story which tells more of the mentality of those regions than a large book. Franz Ringhofer, of the Austro-Hungarian forces, an officer's servant, was clearly his captain's revolver while there was a pause in the fighting. It went off and wounded another soldier. The officers of the battalion charged Ringhofer with negligence, but before he could be court-martialed a Russian attack came on and after that the Austrians had something else to think about. Private Ringhofer and his revolver were lost in the shuffle of the war's last hectic days.

LOST TO the army, but to the bureaucrats never. An ancient monarchy, broke up and the state papers became the property of a new state, Czechoslovakia. Among them was the charge of negligence against Private Ringhofer and it went from one ministry to another for ten years. Until the official file had grown to a great pile of letters. Ringhofer's country, the Burdenland, passed from Hungary to Austria, but the stamping roller of the bureaucracy followed him up irresistibly. After fourteen years Private Ringhofer recently received a summons to appear before a magistrate to answer the old charge which he had forgotten. The magistrate, however, decided to forgive him, as the bureaucrats were annoyed at which the bureaucrats were annoyed at which he was in re-building a country ruined by it.

While the battle of Shikhe River has obviously resulted in a Japanese victory, to-day's dispatches indicate that Kouroupatkin's defeat was far from being as crushing as the news on Saturday and Sunday suggested.

Weather Forecast—Victoria and Vicinity—Light to moderate winds, generally fair and cooler.

The C.P.R. steamer Princess May, which was in from Skagway on Saturday and sailed for the north again on Sunday, carrying a limited freight and a small number of passengers, brought information from White Horse that the last steamer to leave that point for down the Yukon this season sailed on Wednesday.

A fleet of three sailing vessels arrived in the Royal Roads on Saturday, the craft being the British barque Ancona, Captain Robins, from Callao, which was towed in from Cape Flattery by the tug Holyoke; the British barque Linfield, from San Francisco, brought in by the tug Lorne, and the French barque Descais, from Antwerp. The last named was the tug Whydah's tow.

Captain S. Ratin of White Horse arrived from the north the other day and is among the guests at the Dominion Hotel.

There was quite an exciting runaway on Johnson Street this morning. A horse attached to a conveyance belonging to Messrs. Sholtz and Horne, became frightened at an automobile, and started up the street towards Douglas.

SHORTER DAY FOR THE BRITISH MINE WORKERS

London, Oct. 17.—The Government last night informed officials of the Miners' Union of Great Britain that early in the new year there would be uniform reduction in the hours of work from eight to seven and a half hours a day without a reduction of wages, as the first installment toward meeting their demands.

The miners sought repeal of the Eight Hour Act, which was caused to be passed by the last Conservative Government, and reversion to the seven-hour day.

Prolonged conferences were held at Downing Street yesterday between representatives of the miners and the mine owners' coal committee. The miners demanded also a national agreement and a minimum wage. The conference was adjourned until next week.

There is reason to believe the miners' leaders, who had recently shown evidence of impatience over the Government's delay in announcing a mining policy, are well disposed toward the announcement.

The announcement said the Government would make a further half-hour reduction next year "if the industry were able to do so."

It was also stated there had not yet been sufficient opportunity for examining the owners' plan for co-ordination of district marketing schemes, which, although a step in the right direction, would probably not prove sufficiently wide for representatives of other interests.

The Government had definitely decided to nationalize mining royalties, it was announced. The scheme would be the subject of legislation to become effective January 1.

NATIONAL AGREEMENT

On the question of a national agreement miners' leaders had been given to understand an attempt would be made by the Government to persuade the owners to meet the Miners' Federation in an attempt to settle the controversy with the object of avoiding a crisis. The Government, it was further indicated, was proceeding with the question of peace for miners and improved compensation but these will be subjects of future and not immediate legislation.

A new minimum wage act may possibly be taken into consideration in the future.

A strong hope was expressed that the Miners' Federation would agree to the proposed legislation. It was added that the Government had definitely made up its mind on the matter, but that changes would be made if found necessary in the interests of industry and the men.

Investment Trust Assets Show Gain

Montreal, Oct. 17.—The rapid progress being made by Canadian Foreign and Paper Investments Ltd. is indicated by the fact that assets of the company now exceed $8,000,000. This company is an investment trust sponsored by Nesbitt, Thomson & Company Limited.

The company's securities were first offered to the public in February, 1928. The first annual report, published last January, showed assets of $4,647,166.06, indicating that the growth in the interim had been quite remarkable. Based on comparatively recent market

WELL-PAID POST TO BE CREATED BY GOVERNMENT

Director of Public Libraries at Salary of $4,000 to Be Named Shortly

New Official to Administer Carnegie Grant For District Libraries

Hon. S. L. Howe, Provincial Secretary, has been asked by the British Columbia Library Commission, to authorize creation of the post of director of Provincial Libraries, with a suggested salary of $4,000 annually.

Dr. Norman F. Black, chairman of the Library Commission, has requested that the long list of applications for the new post be closed on November 3. The new office is to be the first step towards development of a library system for the province, which the Carnegie Corporation recently allocated $95,000 to this Province.

The Carnegie Corporation has notified the Library Commission that a grant of $31,500 has been budgeted for use by this Province in development of a library system for the province, and that the new office by the Government is a necessary preliminary to reception of the appropriation.

The duty of the new Government official will be development of public support for district library unions and to interview municipal councils in organization of local support for district libraries.

Thinks He Has Found Klondike Motherlode

Seattle, Oct. 17.—Discovery of a quartz reef believed to be the motherlode of the Klondike, from which came millions of dollars in dust and nuggets during the height of the gold rush, was reported by C. J. Rogers, controller of the White Pass and Yukon route, who arrived here yesterday from Whitehorse and Dawson. The reef runs across the upper reaches of Bonanza and Eldorado creeks, and the Dawson Mining Company has uncovered promising ore.

Byrd Party Is To Cover New Ground

New York, Oct. 17.—Commander Richard Byrd's base in the Antarctic has sent a wireless dispatch to The New York Times. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch and associated newspapers, stating the supporting part of the expedition, composed of four men with three dog teams, may get away soon on a 200-mile trip inland, laying depots for the geological party which will get away a few days later.

LIQUOR CHIEF ELECTION TOPIC IN ONTARIO NOW

Toronto, Oct. 17.—While leaders of the three parties were making election pleas from platforms in the central and western parts of Old Ontario last night, emphasis was placed on the liquor question as the dominant issue of the Ontario provincial election campaign.

Premier Ferguson was an autocrat who denied people the right to decide the liquor question for themselves, W. E. Sinclair, E.C. Liberal leader, declared at Oshawa yesterday, attacking the "no plebiscite" policy of the Conservative Cabinet head.

Mr. Sinclair challenged Premier Ferguson again to make public the revenue from liquor sales for the past fiscal year. He denied a statement by the Premier that the figures were not available.

He warned civil servants to keep out of politics. J. J. McLaughlin, leader of the Progressive Party, told a Democratic audience he stood squarely for prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages and that he would support the return of the Ontario Temperance Act.

At Newmarket Premier Ferguson spoke in support of the liquor control act as a temperance measure.

CHINA HAS NEW PLANE SERVICES

Shanghai, China (By Mail).—China has gone air-minded. Along with the abolition of pigtails, the practice of binding the feet of baby girls and a dozen and one other ancient customs, the wheelbarrow and the ricksha are beginning to give way to more modern means of transportation. And it is only natural China should take to the air. Probably no other country in the world offers such a fertile field for aviation development.

China's entrance in the field of aviation on a large scale is comparatively recent. The military of the country has been acquainted with flying machines for several years. Ever since the World War various factions have purchased planes of obsolete type for use on the battlefields, but they failed to do much with them.

On February 17 of the current year China made its official bow into the realm of commercial flying when the first strictly commercial plane ever brought to the country was assembled, tested and turned over to what is now known as the Wuhan Civil Aviation Association of Hankow. Since that time the association has acquired five more planes. These planes are being used on air mail and passenger routes between Hankow and Canton. Since the beginning of the Wuhan Civil Aviation Association at Hankow, several other similar enterprises have come into being. The Shanghai-Nanking air mail and passenger airway has already started to function with four planes as a nucleus.

NEW HOSPITAL PLANS DEBATED

B.C. Municipalities Union Suggests Government Administration

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 17.—Administration by the Government of all public hospitals in British Columbia was endorsed by the Union of British Columbia Municipalities at yesterday's session of its twenty-sixth annual convention here.

Surrey's request that the organization again press for inauguration of a system of provincial health insurance brought a suggestion from Acting Mayor John Bennett of Vancouver that the convention go even farther and urge maternity insurance.

"This may be a Utopian idea, but it is also humanitarian," he declared, "and it is the duty of the convention to advance the suggestion that assistance in such cases might well be left to the discretion of the mothers' pension board. The two proposals, were referred to Reeve Tom Reid of Surrey and Acting Mayor Bennett to combine in a joint resolution for submission to the convention this morning.

Alderman E. H. Bridgman of North Vancouver, president of the convention, stated that government control of hospitals would introduce political interference into their administration. A decade or more ago, he said, both education and hospitals were provincial matters, and the burden was unloaded on the municipalities.

"It is a question of equalization, rather than effective administration," he claimed, pointing out ninety per cent of the population was located in organized territory, while only five per cent of the land carried the burden of taxation.

LOGGING CAMPS REDUCE OUTPUT

Vancouver, Oct. 16.—Not since 1913 have conditions in the logging industry been so unsatisfactory or with poorer outlook than at present, declared R. V. Stuart, manager of the British Columbia Loggers' Association, today.

Production at the moment is about eighty per cent of the normal output and by December 1, Mr. Stuart said, he thought it likely production would not be more than twenty-five per cent of normal. There is every possibility, he thinks, of an absolute shutdown for sixty days.

"The loggers are bound to follow the general trend of the lumbering business," the manager explained. "At present sawmills are curtailing their output and not a single mill on the coast is operating full time, the volume of curtailment varying from closing down one day weekly to four days. The reason for this may be attributed largely to substitutes for lumber on the world market, the falling off of building throughout the world, and on the prairies to the small harvest. Wood substitutes, however, create the greatest menace to this industry."

The shingle mills were operating on half time, Mr. Stuart said. He also stated the big log mill of McCoy Wilson, employing 500 men, was closing down this week at Read Bay. The Behrens Logging Company, the B. & E. Logging Company and several other big outfits had ceased operations this month, he added. These concerns employed in the aggregate 1,000 men. He also expected most of the larger companies would have ceased operations by December 1.

The logging industry ordinarily gives employment in British Columbia to more than 10,000 men, the manager added, adding it was quite evident at present that for at least two months during the winter several thousand of these would be out of work as far as the logging industry was concerned, a number greatly in excess of 5,000.

WOMEN TO KEEP UP FIGHT FOR MRS. MACGILL

Challenge Premier's Statement That Lawyers Needed For Juvenile Court

Bishop Gray, Mrs. Emily Murphy and Others Cited as Examples

"We certainly are going to keep right at work. This is no answer to the women of British Columbia, thousands of whom signed the petition for Judge MacGill's reinstatement to the Juvenile Court."

This was the comment made on Premier Tolmie's statement yesterday by the Vancouver women who took up the cudgels on behalf of Mrs. Helen Gregory MacGill, following her dismissal from the Juvenile Court of Vancouver.

Mrs. Rex Eaton, chairman of the committee, takes issue with the statement made by the Premier in his reply to the delegation's appeal for justice for Mrs. MacGill.

"Premier Tolmie says there was no dismissal of Mrs. MacGill, but that the operation of the statute simply vacated or abolished the offices held. We women would like to know what is the difference between rescinding and dismissing. If Premier Tolmie were right, then Mrs. MacGill lost her jurisdiction at amalgamation on January 1, but she actually continued her work until February 22, when she received the letter notifying her of the rescinding. The letter was dated February 21, was received February 22 and stated that her appointment was rescinded as from February 18. We pointed this out to Premier Tolmie when we interviewed him and the Cabinet. We quoted the letter to make it clear to him. The public can judge for themselves as to that point."

"So, you see, Mrs. MacGill actually held court for eight weeks after Premier Tolmie says her jurisdiction ceased. She received salary during that time, until February 18."

"Then Premier Tolmie speaks of the necessity of reappointing the city police magistrates. That was not necessary in Judge MacGill's case, for the simple reason that she was never a magistrate and it was not necessary under the Juvenile Court Act."

"Again, in the same paragraph, Premier Tolmie says that persons appointed to the magistracy should have legal training and experience. That is not the case anywhere in Canada. I do not think Premier Tolmie could name a single Juvenile Court judge anywhere else who has had that legal training. In Alberta they have Bishop Gray and Mrs. Emily Murphy at Edmonton, neither of whom are lawyers and also Mrs. Alice Jamieson at Calgary."

Judge Nott at Toronto was a school principal. Rev. Quentin Warner at London is not a lawyer. Ethel MacLachlan at Regina, with jurisdiction over the whole of Saskatchewan, is not a lawyer, and I think you will find that Frank Hamilton at Winnipeg is not a lawyer. Anyway, it was not because he was a lawyer that Mr. Hamilton was appointed."

"In England none of the women judges and magistrates is the women's and children's courts are lawyers—not one."

"When Premier Tolmie says that Judge Shaw took both the boys' and girls' courts from the time that Mrs. MacGill's jurisdiction ceased by virtue of coming into effect of the new law (Mr. Tolmie presumably means January 1, as he previously stated), he is simply stating what is not true. Mrs. MacGill continued to hold court regularly until February 22, when she received the official letter of rescinding; that is, until she was dismissed without warning and her salary ceased on February 18."

Mrs. MacGill continued to hold court regularly until February 22, when she received the official letter of rescinding; that is, until she was dismissed without warning and her salary ceased on February 18."

When Judge Shaw was absent on holiday for eight months in 1927, Mrs. MacGill took the whole work of the Juvenile Court without any extra pay. It was also pointed out by Mrs. Eaton and other members of the committee.

DEFICIENCIES OF BREAST-FEEDING OFTEN RESULT OF POOR NURSING TECHNIQUE

Mrs. C. B. L. writes:

"I read your column daily and it helps me a lot. I have a boy three years of age and a girl two and one-half months. The boy was breast-fed and so is the girl. For him I had quantities of milk, but I haven't enough for this baby. Will you tell me what I shall do? I drink lots of water and milk, eat vegetables and fruits of all kinds, but it doesn't seem to help."

ANSWER:

There should be sufficient milk for any baby, providing the mother has a good and nourishing diet no different from what she is used to. If she uses a proper technique in nursing, the omission of two feedings results in less and less milk for the baby, instead of increasing the quantity at the other feedings. Milk unused is re-absorbed and less is "sent in" for the next feeding because the demand regulates the supply. Nature cannot have her work disarranged. In order to have an adequate breast supply the breasts must be stimulated regularly at each nursing.

ing, no matter how little there seems to be. Then if this is not enough for the baby, a complementary feeding will satisfy her. This method keeps the breasts active and results in a gradually increasing supply.

We have a leaflet dealing with "Improvement of the Breast Supply" which will be sent to any reader for the usual self-addressed and stamped envelope.

If you wish the complementary feeding leaflet also, please mention this in the letter.

Cow's milk, in some form, is the best food for babies. It may be certified or grade A pasteurized milk, or evaporated or dried, but it had better not be raw milk. It is advisable for many reasons to pasteurize or boil the milk used for children, or to buy pasteurized milk for them. In this form it is easier to digest and it is safer. Boiling breaks down the tough curds of cow's milk which were not intended for a baby's stomach.

With the early "modified milk formulas" (and where has that term gone?), lime water was used as a medium for breaking up the milk curds. Now, progressive doctors say no, lime water is too dirty, it can't possibly be boiled and therefore has no place in the baby's diet.

Orange juice, or its substitute—tomato juice from canned tomatoes or fresh ones—must be given each day to the baby who takes any of these milks.

LODE REPORTS SHOW ACTIVITY IN MANY LINES

Victoria Officers Give Resume of Work at Chilliwack Meeting

Chilliwack, Oct. 17.—Many interesting reports were given at the semi-annual meeting of Provincial Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, at Chilliwack on Wednesday. Mrs. Dallas Perry, in summarizing her report in connection with Girl Guides and Children's Chapters, said that the chapters and companies seemed more in touch with each other than at any time before.

GUIDE'S BRAVERY

While at camp, Patrol Leader Lucy Northcote of the company, at considerable risk to herself, had rescued from drowning one of the Armstrong guides.

A comprehensive report was given by Mrs. R. J. Sprott, outlining the plan of work in connection with the activities of the I.O.D.E. with immigration of families to this Province. When a family leaves the Old Country, information of their sailing, the personnel of their families, is sent to the Provincial Chapter, when it goes directly to the person in that primary chapter responsible for immigration work.

NEW SETTLERS

"To make more comfortable and content the new families knocking at our doors, to insure a welcome for them at the time they are most likely to be lonely and confused by the radical change in their lives, ought to be patriotic work as well as good mission-ary work," Mrs. Sprott declared.

Mrs. John McKee, in speaking of the order's work in India, mentioned particularly the good work being done there by Miss Borobj. Mrs. C. P. Hill of Victoria gave a brief resume of distinguished visitors entertained by the chapters during the past six months.

Mrs. J. Hendon Gillespie of Victoria was also a convener who reported increase of interest in her department, that of the Navy League work, much of this being due, the speaker said, to the past convener, Mrs. A. McC. Creery. Mrs. Gillespie urged that with a growing value of Canadian commerce, with the opening of Canada's undeveloped areas, with the fact that Canada's sea trade places her fifth among the nations, and in the knowledge that its future in commerce as well as a nation is dependent on Canada's ability to protect the huge coast mileage upon the Atlantic, Pacific and Arctic oceans, the Daughters of the Empire be interested in a very practical sense in the well-being of the Navy League.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Daughters of the Empire can best accomplish the most in assisting in establishing and keeping the peace in the world. Mrs. J. Hawshaw said in her report on the League of Nations, by maintaining peace and tranquility in their thoughts, by keeping abreast of world events through such mediums as the league society and by maintaining a broad imperial outlook.

Graceful gestures which marked the closing of the semi-annual gathering were the presentation of roses to Mrs. Curtis Sampson, provincial regent, by Mrs. J. Grossman on behalf of the Chilliwack Municipal Chapter; a bouquet to Mrs. Raley, municipal regent, from the Provincial Chapter, and flowers to Mrs. Dallas Perry, convener of Guide and children's chapters, from the 2nd Chilliwack ranger company.

MRS. CROFT MEMORIAL

The matter of a fitting memorial to Mrs. Henry Croft, first provincial regent, was discussed, and will be further acted upon at the next meeting of the Provincial Chapter.

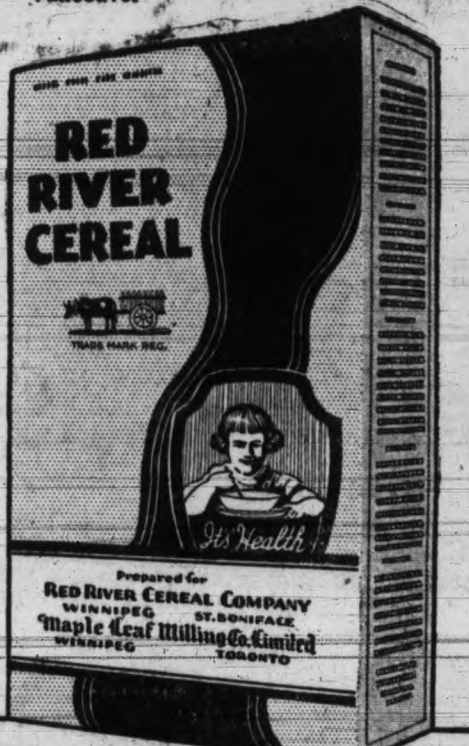

CHILD WELFARE

Mrs. W. H. Hawkins, as Provincial convener of Child Welfare Work, presented an interesting report which showed that during the past six months the sum of $1,000 had been raised in this Province for this work. Substantial donations had been made during this period to the Solarium at Victoria, the Crippled Children's Hospital, the Children's Aid, the Alexandra Fresh Air Fund, the Fresh Air Fund of Gambier Island, the Preventorium Fund, as well as worthy donations to needy families, and the producing of milk for school children in many schools of the Province.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Right Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, Premier of Great Britain, last night issued a flat denial of reports emanating from the United States to the effect that she was engaged to be married. The reports coupled Miss MacDonald's name with that of Rev. J. King Gordon, son of Rev. C. W. FINE RECITAL BY TWO PIANISTS

Berthe Poncy and Myron Jacobson Delight Musical Club Audience

An auspicious commencement was given to the Ladies' Musical Club season last evening when Mme. Berthe Poncy and Myron Jacobson of Seattle appeared in a two-piano recital, assisted by Alice Bogardus, soprano, the programme proving of unusual beauty and novelty.

The pianists opened with the Mozart Sonata in D Major and this first number quickly served to demonstrate the completeness of their art and the perfect balance of their ensemble.

Through a programme which included the Schumann "Andante and Variations," the "Musette Guerriere" and "Pavane" of Saint-Saens-Debussy, three gems from Saint-Saens and the Bachmanoff suite, their performance revealed a velvety tone, nice phrasing, and clean technique, combined with an interesting variety of temperament, which made their playing seem the operation of one intelligence. Both are musicians of high calibre, and the audience expressed its appreciation of their art in no uncertain manner after each group, culminating in a sustained ovation at the close of their very exciting programme.

Alice Bogardus contributed a group which included Tanejew's "Tiere Lived a Nymph" and "The Fountain," one of Mr. Jacobson's own compositions, "Nature Mourns," Roger Quilter's "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal," a little German number, and as an encore Heyworth's "Midsummer." Her soprano voice has a brilliant quality and she sings with intelligence, her performance being warmly received. Mr. Jacobson proved a sympathetic accompanist.

In the Shrine auditorium the Ladies' Musical Club have found a delightful setting for their art. The acoustic properties are excellent, while the mural decorations, representing a Moorish garden with vines climbing the walls and, overhead, the blue sky, provide a colorful, warm background, enhancing the pleasure and comfort of both artists and patrons.

MANY ENTRIES FOR ART SHOW

Lieut.-Governor to Open Annual Exhibition Next Tuesday

The receiving committee has had a very busy time accepting works of art and crafts for the forthcoming exhibition. The Arts and Crafts Society, which is holding the exhibition, will be held in the Belmont Building, beginning Tuesday, October 22. Many new exhibitors have sent in paintings and crafts, not only from local artists, but also from mainland points and as far afield as Alberta. So all indications point towards a fine display which will undoubtedly surpass in quality previous exhibitions of this society.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor has promised to officially open the exhibition next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will be accompanied by Miss MacKenzie. Other officials will include Hon. S. P. Toimie and Mrs. Toimie, and His Worship Mayor Anacomb and Mrs. Anacomb. To attend to the social needs of those visiting the exhibition suitable quarters adjoining the display of paintings and crafts have been set aside as tea room, which will be under the efficient management of Mrs. A. E. Hodgins.

CHILDREN ARE CAUSE OF PLEA

Annual Pound Day at Children's Aid Home Friday

Victorians have always shown a kindly interest in the cause of the child whom circumstances have deprived of a loving home, and the ladies' committee of the Children's Aid Society accordingly hope for a generous response to their annual Pound Day to be held at the home, 1234 Pandora Avenue, on Friday afternoon, from 3 till 6 o'clock.

Gifts of fruit, vegetables, groceries and similar provisions will be gratefully received by the committee. Afternoon tea will be served and an excellent musical programme has been arranged.

There are at the present time thirty-six children in the home—twenty-seven boys and nine girls. These little children have all been removed from their homes in order that they may be brought up in more healthy surroundings and that they may develop into good citizens under the loving care and watchful, trained eye of Miss McCloy, the matron in charge.

The committee appeal to all those in Victoria who have experienced the loving care of parents in their own homes to come forward and help those in their midst who have not been so fortunate.

Victoria W.L.—The regular meeting of the members of Victoria Women's Institute will be held in the institute rooms, 203 Union Building, View Street, on Friday afternoon at 2:30.

An address will be given by Rev. Clem Davies on the League of Nations. A visiting in Victoria and new members joining for the next year will be welcome. Members of other institutes reports. Members of other institutes joining for the next year will be welcome.

Collegians Just Manage To Beat High

THE PITCHING strategy of Connie Mack in the 1929 series was very different from the days when he had Bender, Coombs and Pasmu to send after ball games. Seldom did anybody but a member of this immortal trio take the mound for the tall Mack in the world title combat in the days of old, but no fewer than six men took the rubber in the 1929 classic. Of these, only Howard Ehmke and George Earnshaw pitched complete games.

Rube Walberg, shortstop left-hand of the Macks, had the best average of all the pitchers. He took part in two games and was credited with one victory and no losses. There was not an earned run scored against him. Joe Bush of the Cubs was next in line with two games pitched and a victory and no defeat and a 0.82 earned runs scored against him. However, Bush pitched to forty-nine batters as against only twenty-two for Walberg. Howard Ehmke, hero of the Athletics in the first game, faced fifty-three batters in his two performances and had an average of 1.42 earned runs against him.

A massive white elephant will cast a dark shadow over the American League during the off-season for baseball. The Athletics, securely placed in the front line trenches, will be difficult to dislodge. Connie Mack, standing alone as the sole fourth offender against National League clubs in the world's series, probably will remain the directing head of the playing forces for at least three more seasons. He will then be seventy years of age. His present grasp of the game should hold out for several seasons. The world's champions offer a well-balanced combination, the enthusiasm of youth being tempered by the experience of veterans.

Mr. Mack's first change among his regulars may be at shortstop. Jack Boley had trouble with his arm last year and was an uncertainty until the 1929 season was well on its way. The heir apparent is in court. Eric McVair, who joined the team from Knoxville, just before the season closed, may be ready to pick up Boley's glove when he casts it aside.

Quinn and Ehmke probably will not go much further on the baseball journey, but the other stars of the pitching staff are in the hands of the Athletics. Bill Shores and Bill Breckinridge are mere youngsters. Waiting for their chance.

Bing Miller, the oldest outfielder but he will not have to retire yet awhile. Mule Haas and Al Simmons are the same age, twenty-six, and should be factors in the Mackian offensive for many years.

Six months before another baseball season is scheduled to start, no serious threat appears against the herd of Mack. The once invincible New York Yankees must be rebuilt and it is unlikely that they will be able to challenge next year.

Cleveland is up and coming but the Indians are not yet a good ball club. The St. Louis Browns, Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers cannot reasonably expect to be transformed into championship contenders next night. The Sox, white and red, face even more necessary reconstruction.

If the sixty-seven-year-old Mack can get in two or three more seasons before he retires from the executive bench to the calm of an executive office, he may leave a mark for baseball generations yet unborn to attack.

Score Is 27-26 in Hard-fought City League Basketball Tussle

Foresters Stage Comeback To Beat James Island; Keating Win Game

Last night's games in the City Basketball League played at the Y.M.C.A. brought two of the best contests to date. Victoria College applied a sleep punch to the younger players from Victoria High school after a strenuous tussle, 27-26, while the Foresters wrested another hard-earned victory from the James Island crew by a score of 38-26, while in the women's game the Keating team won by a shut-out, 37-0, from the inexperienced Hudson's Bay squad.

Undoubtedly the best game of the evening was that between the two school teams, who are keen rivals and are pretty evenly matched, as the score indicates. Last year both teams finished the season with the margin of victory just about fifty-fifty.

College turned in a very commendable game which was chiefly featured by their ability to place the ball within scoring distance whenever they advanced toward enemy territory. They did not waste many shots and their passes were well timed. High School put a lighter team on the floor which looked fast but they did not get a chance to exhibit their speed to any extent as their opponents did not allow any fast passes to travel very far.

COLLEGE LEAD
At half time the College were on the long of a 12-11 score only to have the fighting High School come back to secure the lead on three occasions but never once did they get a commanding lead. The shooting of Lloyd Jones and Claude Bissell the Collegians caught up and again commanded a lead. The playing of Art Chapman, the High captain, was prominent. He scored eleven of the team's points playing guard.

The teams and scores follow:
Victoria College-Bissell 9, Jones 16, Foubister, Hume, Prior and Fraser 2, Total 27.
Victoria High School-McMurchie 8, Pritchard 4, Sheppard 6, Chapman 11, Petch and Shields 2, Total 26.

FORESTERS WIN
The Foresters showing signs of long practice sent the James Island squad down to defeat. James Island were the play-offs last year for the league title but got away to a bad start last night.

The lodgemen, having two good forwards in the name of Addie and a new man by the name of Petch, will give any team in their section a good run.

In last night's game the powdermen got away to an early lead and by half time were still ahead. With but eight minutes left to play the Island but the Islanders never gave up and just before the close of the game, the Islanders scored a basket, it acted as a stimulant and they scored at will to enlarge their total to 38, while the powdermen ended with 26 points.

The teams and scores follow:
Foresters-Addie 16, Martin 14, Reynolds 2, Brown 2, Cann 4, Penwell, James Island-Rose 4, Jenkinson 5, Smith 9, Rivers 7, and Thompson 1, Total 26.

The women's game was just about as good last season, having added several of the Red Wings team to their squad and are now quite strong.

Equipped with a couple of forwards who can shoot and get goals the suburbanites will make things tough for some of the other teams in this section. Hilda Scott and Dot Rendall, Wings line-up, scored twenty-five points between them with the former scoring the odd point to top the scores. The departmental store quintette, playing their first game in years are not to be discouraged, as they were hard.

The teams and scores follow:
Keating-H. Scott 13, A. Styan 6, Young 2, Rendall 12, N. Scott, V. Handy 4 and P. Anderson, Total 37.
Hudson's Bay-B. Peacock, E. Matthews, M. Relf, G. Cook, and E. Felton, Total 0.

MAD KISS IS BIG THREAT FOR STAKES

Wins Manor Purse Considered Trial For Richer $10,000 Selima Stakes

Brown Wisdom With Heavy Impost Captures Big Handicap at Latonia

New York, Oct. 17.—The light blue and brown topped colors of Harry Payne Whitney added another threat for the $10,000 Selima Stakes to be run Saturday when Mad Kiss galloped home an easy victor in the Manor Purse at Laurel yesterday.

Considered a trial for the richer stake, which will be run as a feature of Saturday's card, Mad Kiss reeled off the grandstand patrons. Nick and Stewart's Sydney by three lengths Partisan was third, beaten by a length for the place.

While yesterday's feature was a test for youngsters of either sex, Saturday's top number will bring only fillies with Harry Payne Whitney holding the upper hand in Dustmell, Mucky Cloud and Mad Kiss.

Mad Kiss was an outsider in the wagering and paid $13.70 at the mutual windows to win $3.70 to place and $4.40 to show. The Whitney interest, however, were not so fortunate in the six furlong maiden event to E. R. Bradley's Buckeye Post.

A LONG SHOT
Jockey "Slim" Robertson, who had the mount on Mad Kiss, put across long shot in the third race with Hairbrush, which paid $41.40 to win, $18.10 to place and $11.90 to show.

Racing on the Long Island tracks for the 1929 season came to a close at Jamaica with an ordinary programme featuring small fields and the Oceanic claiming handicap for two-year-olds.

J. N. Loucheim's Infinitus proved the best of the field with Jolly Pat second and Gay Past third. The thoroughbred move to Empire City to-morrow for the last fourteen days of racing in the Metropolitan district.

Brown Wisdom carried the heavy impost of 122 pounds in the Walnut Hills handicap at Latonia, but came back to the winner's circle with a smashing victory. Three lengths back of the winner of the mile gallop followed.

Whiskery, Kentucky Derby winner of 1927, while in third place was Broadside, five-year-old son of Man o' War. Brown Wisdom was the hot favorite and paid only $2.75 to win the mile race.

Seven races of the claiming variety were Aurora's offering to the fans yesterday with the fourth bringing out the class of the programme.

Lewis's three-year-old Jack Haskell was an easy winner over the six furlongs with Shift and Shasta Pearl taking down show money.

Red Uhlan Wins By a Knockout
Oakland, Oct. 17.—Red Uhlan, 17, of Oakland, knocked out Olson Johnson, 17, of Seattle, in the fourth round of their ten-round bout at the East Bay Athletic Club last night.

Uhlan, a southpaw, dropped his opponent with a left to the body, the latter taking the full count.

Mer Bar-Livermore heavyweight, outclassed Chief Cariboo, of Medford Creek, B.C., so badly that the referee stopped the bout in the first round of their four-rounder, awarding the victory to Bar.

Boguljubow Wins Over Dr. Alekine
Berlin, Oct. 17.—E. D. Boguljubow, of Trier, challenger, defeated Dr. Alexander Alekine, of Paris, champion, in 71 moves in the fourteenth game of their world championship chess match yesterday. The score now stands Alekine 6, Boguljubow 4, and four draws.

Victorian Waits Twelve Hours to See Athletics Win Fourth From Cubs

(By TOMMY FORBES)
The fourth game of the world series, which I was fortunate enough to see, was a baseball encounter which those in attendance will never forget. Not only the game, but the long wait for tickets will always remain in my memory as wonderful.

In writing an account of my impressions of this game, I will commence with the struggle to get tickets. Arriving in Philadelphia just at the midnight before the game we approached several speculators inquiring the price of their tickets. We were told that seats regularly priced at $5.50 were selling at $12.50, and were worth it. Not feeling in the frame of mind to pay that amount, we asked if there was much of a line-up for bleacher seats. The man, in very abrupt business manner, informed us that we had a "great chance" of getting tickets at that time. Undaunted we continued on our way to Shibe Park, the scene of the Philadelphia games. Arriving there a scene greeted our eyes that I am sure very few Victorians have ever seen. For five or six squares (blocks in Canada) people were sleeping on the sidewalk, rolled up in blankets and anything else they could lay their hands on, while the more unfortunate were standing or sitting on boxes.

We drove up to a policeman, showed him our B.C. license plate, and he did it for us. He led us up to a parking place, and then ahead of several sleeping beauties, and placed us in line.

Wrapped in car blankets we waited until 7:30 when, with blowing of police whistles as the reveille, we formed a line. At this time we were able to look at the people assembled, and I am sure that every nationality was represented. At 8:15 we entered the park and took our seats and set out on the next lap of the long wait.

At about 9 o'clock the first bleacher seat was sold and every body held on to theirs, not daring to leave unless about three people guarded it with their lives.

SEATS AUCTIONEER
Auctioning of seats took place, some poor unfortunate who did not get one would be walking along the aisles and some would offer to sell his seat. Two dollars was the highest price paid for a seat. I heard of a man who was cracking and riding of the coffee vendors took place, and all helped to pass the time until 11 o'clock, when baseball's two great squares (blocks in Canada) took the field. Their baseball fight, tennis and rowboat action drew great applause from the dollar boys. Showing their ingenuity they took on a money-set by catching a butterfly. Al was the successful one in this chase, winging the brute after about a ten-minute battle. From the hand he received for his capture, one of the outside of the park would think that I heard of a man who was cracking and riding of the coffee vendors took place, and all helped to pass the time until 11 o'clock, when baseball's two great squares (blocks in Canada) took the field. Navy Eleven Score Third Straight Win

Tars Increase Lead in Wednesday Football By 2-0 Victory Over Saanich
Percy Shrimpton Stars as Hudson's Bay Blank Batchelors For 4-0 Win

Chalking up their third straight victory at the expense of Saanich United, the Navy eleven have now obtained a strangle hold on the leadership of the Wednesday Football League. Yesterday the tars defeated the youthful Saanich team 2-0 at Beacon Hill. In the second match of the day the Hudson's Bay marked up their initial victory of the season by their 4-0 victory over Batchelors.

In their match with Saanich the Navy scored their first goal on a pretty foul shot from the toe of Robinson and the second on a lovely cross shot by Johnston. Saanich United had a good chance to break into the scoring column late in the second half when they were awarded a penalty, but hit the upright. The sailors played a good game and practically ran the younger boys off their feet.

From the start the tars attacked the Saanich citadel and it was only the good work of Restall between the posts that saved them from a far worse defeat. The Navy forced two corners, but they were both cleared and immediately following this the suburban goalie broke up a dangerous rush that had the earmarks of a goal.

Play continued in a ding-dong manner, and then, on a combined forward rush, the Navy were presented with the opportunity to register the first corner. Spriddell shot the ball, but Moir, Saanich back, got his hands to it just outside the penalty area. The Navy were awarded a foul and Robinson made no mistake when he planted the leather safely behind Restall for the first goal.

The tars continued to press their advantage and were awarded two more corners and another foul to boot. Saanich tried some long shots, but the Navy backs were playing a good game and left nothing to chance. Marr had hard luck when he headed the ball over the bar on a perfect centre. Play was in midfield when the half-time whistle blew.

Shortly after the rest period it started to rain and the ball became greasy and hard to handle. Both teams were working hard, with the Navy having slightly the better of the play. The Saanich forwards were weak in front of the goal, passing up many chances to score.

Tooby had a good chance to score, but shot wide and the backs cleared. The Saanich goal had two narrow escapes when Cozier and Spriddell sent in hot drives, but they were both kept out by the uprights.

Saanich had one big chance to score when they were awarded a penalty, but a shot that hit the uprights and from then on the Navy goal was never in any real danger.

The Navy continued to press and their second goal came from the toe of Johnston and gave the goalies no chance to save. A few minutes later the final whistle blew. Armstrong, referee. The teams were as follows: Navy—Gentill, Plummer, Tapley, McDonald, Robinson, Whyte, Plummer, Marr, Spriddell, Johnston and Cozier.

Saanich—United—Restall, Blanco, Barry, Stonier, Moir, Lowe, Cann, Hawkes, Rigby and Tooby.

Although beaten by four goals Batchelors had much more of the play than the Hudson's Bay. The losers did everything but score goals, and this was mainly through the splendid exhibition of goalkeeping offered up by Percy Shrimpton, of the departmentals. Batchelors had the best part of the play in both halves, but they just couldn't get the ball into the net.

In the first half the Bays scored three goals, although play was fairly even with Batchelors possibly having a little the edge. After being on the defensive for quite a while the Bays finally broke away, and Donie Fish put them in the lead when he beat McGee with a terrific shot from close quarters. Shortly after King made it 2-0 for the Bays. Batchelors pressed again and Shrimpton was tested with shots from Wright and Taylor. Just before half-time Jack Payne made it 3-0.

In the second half Batchelors had it all over the Bays, even though they failed to score, and the departmentals added one more counter to their total. The Bays broke away on occasional rushes and it was on one of these that Fish scored his second goal of the match. Towards the end of the match Batchelors were awarded two penalties, but Purdy missed the first one and McMillan the second. Shrimpton made two nice saves on both shots.

McKay refereed.

The teams were as follows:
Hudson's Bay—Shrimpton, Wallace, Geddes, Cull, Woodley, Oakman, Newell, Fish, King, Payne and Armstrong.
Batchelors—McGee, Maine, McMillan, Plater, Purdy, Bayne, Cummins, Taylor, Wright, Mercer and Briggs.

A Hard Hitter

—By Jimmy Thompson

Eugene Haut, the latest sensation in the ranks of the "big little fellows," will meet "Frenchy" Belanger, the Canadian champion, in a headline bout at Toronto, to-morrow. He has a great record and has defeated a number of outstanding boxers. His first bout of importance was with the Italian champion, Oliva, whom he KO'd in the fifth round. Then he was matched with the sensational French boxer, Emil "Spider" Pladner, and French fans had the idea that he was merely a set-up for "Spider," but he came through and knocked out Pladner. He then defeated Ernie Jarvis in a bout that was considered his best effort. Now he is going to fight Belanger and if he is as good as his previous bouts show "Frenchy" will have his troubles.

DATES ARE SET FOR PLAY-OFFS

Schedule Released For Play-downs For Prairie Rugby Championship

Winnipeg, Oct. 17.—Senior rugby champions of Saskatchewan and Manitoba will meet in the first round of play for the western Canadian championship at Winnipeg on Saturday, November 2, it was announced last night by Dr. Walter A. Miller, president of the Western Canada Rugby Union.

Alberta's senior champions will meet the winners of the Saskatchewan and Manitoba series at the home of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba winners.

Winners of the western inter-collegiate rugby union are not included in the play-down schedule because, said Dr. Miller, the College organization is affiliated directly with the Canadian Union and therefore not under jurisdiction of the western Canadian governing body.

Following the schedule given out by President Miller:

SENIOR
November 2—Saskatchewan champions versus Manitoba champion, at place versus winners of Alberta-Saskatchewan series at home of latter.

JUNIOR
November 3—Alberta champions versus Saskatchewan champions at home of latter.
November 9 or 11—Manitoba champions versus winners of Alberta-Saskatchewan, at Winnipeg.

The game would be transported by sleighs in the winter as far as the snow would permit, then placed in ice houses with walls four feet thick, there being used for insulation saw dust. When the snow came in the fall, once more the game would be carried to the next relay depot. In this way some of the game would be three years old when it got to the consumer. Nevertheless, just as good as ever to eat, for once frozen the tissues remain perfect. Well, this parcel of game, some 500 tons, packed in the manner described, by the first to erect a real refrigeration plant, I got to the consumer. I think Mr. Bushnell is now dead. I dispose of it at once. The weather was too mild for the game to remain frozen, so we conceived the idea of

The temperature in the cellar was such that the game kept in fine shape until finally disposed of. I would term it our idea was the first attempt of a cold storage in the Old World. Barnard Thinks American League Has Big Margin

Chicago, Oct. 17.—President E. S. Barnard of the American League believes his loop is 20 per cent stronger than the National League and he credits the New York Yankees for the showing.

"The persistent domination in our league has served to set such a pace that other clubowners were compelled to buy better players," Barnard explained to-day. "As a result, the entire league is stronger. We have been bringing in better players and to-day rank about 20 per cent stronger than John Heydler's circuit."

What did really happen I feel sure is as follows:
Groom and Sons of Harwich, England, in the early part of the last century established fishing stations along the coast of Norway primarily for the purpose of buying lobsters off the fishermen. These lobsters were transported alive in well vessels to Harwich, then to London and other cities of England. Groom and Sons earned a fortune in the enterprise. I knew them well, handled much of their shipments on arrival in England. The Grooms, besides fisheries, bought up game, sent it to England in the manner you described it was packed. Whilst on the topic of refrigeration, permit me to tell of my knowledge of the subject. In the fall of 1885 a Russian nobleman had his peasants

Norman E. Pearson Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"The trouble first started with a few blotches on my face. A little later pimples formed and spread all over it. They were quite large and some of them festered. The pimples itched and burned and bothered me a lot. Many nights I could not sleep on account of the irritation, and when I scratched it caused disfigurement."

"I tried different remedies without success. I had the trouble about four months when I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using a few days I was greatly relieved so purchased more and in about two months I was 'healed.'" (Signed) Norman E. Pearson, 5387 Fabre St., Montreal, Que.

ONTARIO TO PAY V.C. MEN'S FARES TO LONDON

Newmarket, Ont., Oct. 17.—Ontario will pay the cost of everyone from this province who won the Victoria Cross in the Great War who desires to attend the dinner of the Prince of Wales in London next month in honor of holders of that decoration throughout the British Empire. Premier G. Howard Ferguson made this announcement last night to an audience composed of returned soldiers

CIVIC CEREMONY MARKS AIR LINK WITH VICTORIA

Vancouver Greets First Plane From Victoria on New Service

Arrival of the first plane of the Washington-Alaska-British Columbia Airways in the Victoria-Vancouver service yesterday was marked by a civic ceremony in Vancouver with a reception committee of aldermen and other prominent citizens and transportation officials on hand.

The graceful six-passenger Fairchild seaplane with Pilot A. H. Wilson at the controls landed at False Creek airport before the admiring crowd and unloaded passengers exactly on the scheduled time of forty-five minutes for the run from the time they stepped on board at Victoria. The arrival at Vancouver, however, was later than expected on account of a preliminary trial trip which gave an opportunity for a flight to extra passengers who had been looking forward to a spin in the new plane on its first day in the service. Heavy express shipments prevented a full list being taken on the Vancouver flight.

The comfort of the accommodation on the plane and the delights of flying won the admiration of the passengers. The little fog earlier in the day almost cleared when the machine was a few miles out of Victoria, and the travelers reclining in comfortable chairs, smoking, talking and admiring the scenery below found the flight all too short. They left Victoria at 12.50. By 1.35 they were in Vancouver. A little over an hour later the machine was away again on its return trip to Victoria, and by 3.30 the returning passengers were back in Victoria.

With both the Victoria-Vancouver and Victoria-Seattle planes of the Alaska-Washington and British Columbia Airways in service now from the landing place near the B. and N. wharf, the air base is a hive of activity with passengers from Seattle and Vancouver arriving and departing, almost hourly. Airport workers are on hand to anchor the planes as they sail gracefully by to the landing stage. Passengers are met with cars and transported to their destination, and travelers and express are dispatched quietly and efficiently. Many of the travelers are seasoned fliers who accept the comparatively new mode of transportation as a matter of course.

HONOR PAID TO B. A. M'KELVIE

Illuminated Address Presented Past Grand Factor of Native Sons

An illuminated scroll of appreciation, from the Vancouver Post of the Native Sons of British Columbia, was last night presented to Bruce A. McKelvie, past grand factor, at a joint social held in the Sons of England Hall by the Victoria Post of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of British Columbia, with Chief Factor R. H. Hisecks of Victoria Post No. 1, in the chair.

The testimonial was presented by John N. Babcock, vice-factor of Vancouver Post, who was supported at the ceremony by Geo. F. Askew and Fred C. Aubrey.

Presented by the officers and members of Post No. 2, Native Sons of British Columbia, to Bro. B. A. McKelvie, a past chief factor and life member, on the occasion of his departure for Victoria, as a token of appreciation of his faithful and valuable work in the interests of the post and of his native Province.

When accepting the scroll, Mr. McKelvie recalled the many pleasant associations he had enjoyed with members of the Vancouver Post.

An entertainment programme was provided by members of Victoria Post. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

PAY TRIBUTE TO PIONEER WOMAN

Native Daughters Pen Appreciation of Late Mrs. L. M. B. Dodds

The funeral of the late Mrs. Louisa Martha Blinkhorn Dodds will take place from the B.C. Funeral Chapel tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, proceeding to the Reformed Episcopal Church, where service will be conducted by Rev. A. de B. Owen. Interment will be in Ross Bay Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Dodds was a member of the Native Daughters of British Columbia, and also of the I.O.D.E. She was the widow of Robert E. Dodds, and is survived by two brothers, Henry B. Ellis and Fred W. Ellis of Victoria, a niece, Mrs. Spencer Barnes, and a nephew, George Nesbitt of Vancouver.

AN APPRECIATION
Post No. 3, Native Daughters of British Columbia, have contributed the following appreciation of Mrs. Dodds: "Although advanced in years it is still possible to preserve a youthful spirit. This fact was remarkably demonstrated in the later years of Mrs. L. M. B. Dodds, who has just passed on to her last rest. Having reached the full allotted span she retained to the last the keenest possible interest in all that was going on about her and particularly in the activities of the Native Daughters of British Columbia, of which organization she was a charter member."

BORN HERE IN 1830
"A daughter of pioneer parents, born in Victoria March 31, 1830, in a cottage which then stood a few yards from the site of the present Colonial Building, and living almost the whole of her life in this city, it was natural that she should find in the work of the Native Daughters of British Columbia an opportunity to express in concrete ways the love and devotion she felt for her native land."

"When the local posts of Native Sons and Daughters decided to lease the old Craigflower School and to renovate the building they found in Mrs. Dodds an enthusiastic supporter and elected her vice-president of the board of trustees, which position she retained till her death. Her interest in things historic resulted further in her filling the office of historian in her own post, and representing that post in the British Columbia Historical Society. In appreciation of her exceptional services to the Native Daughters of British Columbia she was elected a life member of the society.

LOVE OF FLOWERS
Those of her friends who were privileged to know her in her own home 'Louella' will ever associate with her memory pictures of her beautiful garden where she spent so many happy hours. She was especially fond of one corner where she had planted native trees and wild flowers. On passing through the Uplands one spring when the bluebells and buttercups made a colorful carpet under the oaks she exclaimed, "Surely Heaven cannot be more beautiful."

"For several consecutive years with sprigs of evergreen from the trees of her garden, she has fashioned a wreath to be laid at the Cenotaph on Armistice Day and at our last meeting, just a week before her death, she offered to do the same this year."

"By her quiet cheerfulness, her kindly desire to help and her gentle presence at our meetings, business and social, she was an inspiration of all of us, an example of what a true Native Daughter ought to be. We called her the mother of our post."

Saanichton

Watson; secretary-treasurer, J. Nimmo; directors, Misses A. Bagley, M. Hughes and Misses J. Hawley, R. Lawson, A. Jeune, G. Malcolm, R. Love, R. Derringer, and E. Oakes.

It is the intention of the club to enter in the badminton league in Victoria. Prospective members wishing to join the club are cordially invited.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

By SISTER MARY

During the fall and winter months, sausages are popular for breakfast, luncheon or dinner.

They are useful to give flavor to many interesting dishes and are a most attractive and appetizing garnish for roast, chicken or turkey.

Sausage may be baked in a hot oven instead of fried on top of the stove, but no matter how it is cooked it must be well done.

Link sausage, country sausage and bulk sausage are all made from finely-chopped pork. Both fat and lean meat are used, but never more than one-third as much fat as lean should be added. While any kind of meat can be made into "sausage" in this country, the word generally means pork. If some other meat or a combination is used, a characteristic word is used to define it.

In order to insure thorough cooking without drying out and over-cooking it's an excellent idea to parboil thick sausage first. Be sure to prick the skin in several places to prevent bursting.

Combination dishes made with sausage are delicious. Potatoes stuffed with parboiled sausage, scalloped sweet potatoes and sausage, sausage and macaroni, rice and sausage, sausage in a casing of baking powder biscuit dough, are a few of the many ways sausage can be used to add variety to menus.

Meals should be carefully planned when sausage is to be the meat. Vegetables for bulk as well as mineral salts and vitamin content must be provided. Fruit or a light pudding lacking in fat makes a suitable dessert.

Sausage rolls are a good, hearty luncheon dish.

SAUSAGE ROLLS.
Two cups flour; four teaspoons baking powder, half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, water, four parboiled small sausages.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in butter and cut in water to make a soft dough.
Put on a floured moulding board and roll with floured rolling pin into a sheet about one-third inch thick. Cut into oblong pieces a little longer than the sausages and put a sausage in each. Fold edges together and place on an oiled and floured pan. Bake in a moderate oven until a golden brown.
Serve with apple or cranberry sauce.

It will take about twenty-five minutes to bake the rolls.

Pioneer Children Were Always Aware of Danger

"Don't go out of sight of the fort," warned Richard Johnson's mother, as Richard and his sister begged to go out to play, on a warm summer's day.
They lived in Bryant's Station, a little pioneer settlement in Kentucky.
There had often been trouble with the Indians, and the children were never allowed to go far to play.

Richard and his sister began picking flowers and wandered farther and farther away. His sister sometimes looked back at the fort, and timidally suggested they not go far enough, but Richard stoutly insisted on going nearer and nearer to the edge of the forest, in spite of his mother's orders.
Suddenly he stopped, his heart beating very fast. He saw something moving behind a rock, and—yes, two feathers were sticking up! He grabbed his sister's hand and whispered, "Run!"
She knew what that meant. They ran like deer, expecting every minute to hear a warwhoop.

His sister began to lag, and yet they had not reached the fort. Fearfully Richard looked over his shoulder. A big wild turkey strutted out from behind the rock. It hadn't been an Indian at all! But when he thought of what might have happened, and how badly he had been frightened, Richard vowed he'd never disobey again.

Richard Johnson, born 148 years ago today, was an Indian fighter, leading pioneer, and Vice-President of the United States.

"Co-operating with Hon. W. A. Mr. McKenzie announced with satisfaction to-day.

"Between eight and ten cars of British Columbia coal, each car being a representative sample of the field from which it was taken, will be sent to Ottawa in the course of the next few months. The two transcontinental railways are carrying the coal free because, as Mr. Beatty said in a letter to Mr. McKenzie, 'the importance of the experiments proposed to be conducted at Ottawa, looking to the possible use of Canadian coal in pulverized form,' warrants his company's co-operation. SECOND BATTLE HONORS AWARDED TO REGIMENTS

Rejection By 2nd Battalion, Now Peterboro Rangers, of Definite Battle Names

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—In the supplementary list of battle honors which militia regiments are entitled to emblazon on their colors, and on the colors of the Canadian Expeditionary Force units which such regiments possess, 109 battalions are disposed of, thus reducing the number still to be dealt with to a small figure. The Department of National Defence to-day has caused the information regarding these battle honors, as published in district headquarters orders.

Heading the supplementary list is the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, which, in their 1918 selection, carry the coveted honor, "Frasenborg." The Patricia's alone of the Canadian troops which operated in France are entitled to this particular award.

Three militia regiments, nine Canadian Corps infantry battalions, 126 reinforcing battalions of the C.E.F., four Canadian Corps Machine Gun battalions and four machine gun units of the active militia, six pioneer battalions, one battalion of railway construction troops and four forestry units are dealt with in this second list. Additional to these are the 250th and 260th Battalions, which received the award "Siberia."

2TH AWARDS HONORS

An analysis of the awards shows all the battalions of the Canadian Corps with the sole exception of the 7th (British Columbia) Battalion have now received their color honors. It also discloses that only one infantry battalion has rejected all of the 1918 battle honors from its color, including "Amiens," "Drocourt-Queant" and "Canal du Nord." This is the 2nd Battalion, perpetuated by the Peterboro Rangers. The official list reveals that in their places those responsible for the selection have chosen the less definite "Hindenburg Line" to represent all the fighting wherein this unit participated in 1918. Every other battalion of the Canadian Corps has selected "Amiens," which as Lieut. Dorff said, was "the black day of the German Army" in view of the fact that the 2nd Battalion fought through Amiens on August 8 and 9, 1918, to the point of the Canadian penetration, and culminated their efforts by capturing Rouvrou en Santerre, which marked the limit of the Canadian advance on the second day of the battle, the rejection of "Amiens" as a color honor is unique.

The Canadian Light Horse is the only cavalry regiment that has failed to accept "Amiens." In 1918, however, the C.L.H. were "Corps Troops" and distinguished from the regiments of the Canadian Cavalry Brigade.

TEN HONORS

In general all of the 1st Division battalions have selected "St. Julien" and "Festubert," which, in the nature of things, are the least distinguished of the regiments of the Canadian Cavalry Brigade.

MS. VICTORIA WELCOMED TO THIS PORT

Capt. Broner of Ship Entertains City Council and Business Men

Honoring the City Council and business men of Victoria, Capt. A. Broner of the Danish motorship Victoria, named after this city, entertained at a luncheon aboard his ship to-day at the Ogden Point pier, where the vessel is loading a cargo of lumber for the West Indies. Luncheon was served in true Danish style.

Capt. Broner welcomed his guests in a pleasing little speech and said he was happy to be in the city from which his ship had taken her name. Although this was his first visit here, he hoped to return to port often and meet his guests of to-day.

Alderman James Adams, on behalf of Mayor H. Amosson, who is absent from the city, welcomed Capt. Broner and his fine ship to this port. He voiced his confidence in the port of Victoria, and that before long would be one of the greatest on the Pacific Coast. In conclusion Mr. Adams wished Capt. Broner and his crew many happy and prosperous voyages and on behalf of the City Council presented the skipper with a framed portrait of the inner harbor of Victoria, taken from the air and suitably engraved. Mr. Adams hoped that Capt. Broner would take it with him to many world ports as a reminder of the beauty and growing business of the capital city of British Columbia.

Capt. Broner replied briefly, thanking the council for such a pleasing remembrance.

Those present at to-day's luncheon were: Alderman James Adams, Henry King, Fred Hawes, B. C. Nicholas, J. O. Cameron, J. Carl Pendray, Alderman E. S. Woodward, J. A. Humbird of Chemaluna, Colonel Lightbody, Alderman J. E. Carr, P. E. Cavendish, John Baxter and J. R. McMillan of Vancouver.

ROTARIANS ARE SHRINE GUESTS AT NEW TEMPLE

E. E. Leason Explains Proposed Convalescent Home at Mill Bay

The Rotary Club this afternoon held its weekly luncheon at the new Shrine Temple on View Street. Illustrative Potentate Walter Luney of Otter Temple, giving the members a description of the construction and facilities of the new building.

Telling of the financing of the Shrine Temple, Mr. Luney stated that, although Victoria had less than 300 of the 700 Shriner in British Columbia, more than one-half the debentures had been taken up by Victoria members.

Mr. Luney introduced officers responsible for the construction and furnishing, including T. W. Hawkins, chairman; Ralph Berrill, architect; E. Williams, contractor; Norman Lee, furnishings; and P. Schmuckel, kitchen.

—E. E. Leason, recorder, told of the Shrine organization and its growth in recent years. The great membership in 1920, at the Portland session of the Imperial Council, decided to establish free hospitals for crippled children, a real contribution to public service.

—Mr. Leason stated that twenty-two British Columbia patients had been treated successfully in various units of the Shrine system.

Pointing out that the tendency of the Order was to-day towards provision of convalescent homes for patients located at Shrine hospitals, to attain greater use of the main equipment, Mr. Leason told of the proposed erection of such a Shrine convalescent home adjoining the Queen Alexandra Solarium, funds for this addition having been provided by two anonymous donors.

"Let us see what vaccination did for Sheffield. This Sheffield epidemic occurred in 1887 in the very worst quarter of the town. They went on vaccinating and revaccinating and still the smallpox epidemic spread. There were no less than 7,000 cases and 600 deaths until ... down came the rain which washed the sores and the drains, cleared away the filth from the streets, washed the dirt from the doors and away went the smallpox. Pure water accomplished for Sheffield what 56,000 vaccinations had been unable to effect."—(W. R. Hadwen, M.D., J.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., L.S.A., etc., Eng-land).

OLD CATTLE DEALS TOLD IN LETTERS

Kansas City, Oct. 17.—In 1823 Nathaniel Leonard, a native of Vermont, left his home in New England and settled in Missouri. Twelve years later, on the broad acres now known as Ravenswood, was established the first herd of registered short-horn cattle west of the Mississippi River.

Recently, after ninety years, during which time the herd has continued in the same family, there was held at this short-horn shrine a memorable meeting. The guests, numbering 1,000 or more, included outstanding stockmen and men prominent in public life. A. H. Brown, states was represented and plans proposed for a great centennial celebration.

Study of recently discovered correspondence in the roomy Ravenswood mansion, erected by the late Capt. Charles E. Leonard, son of the founder of the herd and father of the present proprietor, M. Nelson Leonard, has yielded some interesting facts. These letters go back to 1827 and constitute valuable documents in the history of livestock development in the United States. Most of them are from Benjamin G. Leonard, brother of Nathaniel Leonard.

In those days envelopes had not come into general use. There were no postage stamps, the postage generally being paid by the party addressed.

Under date of May 20, 1839, there is a letter addressed to Nathaniel from Benjamin G. Leonard, which reads in part:

"In haste I can only say that I have purchased for you your cattle Durham one bull and heifer—two sows and one boar pig—and send in my account."

"These cattle I have put into the keeping of an English herdsman, who came over with some of the Durhams from England. I have instructed him to call on Mr. Robert Payne, or Wm. L. Sublette, at St. Louis, to whom I have procured letters, and who will advise him as to the trans-shipment up the Missouri."

PRICE LIST AND PEDIGREES

Three days later Benjamin wrote: "I last evening shipped on board of a canal boat for Portsmouth, mouth of the canal, thence to St. Louis, Mo., and your place. The purchases I have made for you. I bought the bull Comet Star for $200 and the heifer for $200 of Mr. George Renwick and sent the pedigree by the man Thomas Boyen, now deceased, and the Thomas Boyen, to whose care I have committed them."

"With respect to expense of transportation, when Mr. Renwick and myself talked of it he thought we should have in proportion to the value of the stock. I have paid out here $4 for four bags of the best quality; they will be of value when they reach you; and $1 for bucket, $3.75 for corn, 18 cents for boy's service, $25 for transportation to Portsmouth; $100 for the man who has charge and $30 for your pigs—in all $169.93."

"P. S.—Thomas has a statement of our bargain. When he got on the boat last night I told him you could give him a small premium should he take the best care of the stock, and as well to encourage him. Don't pay him unless he deserves it, say $5—five dollars."

In the ninety years since the establishment of the Ravenswood herd much short-horn history has been made, and to this Leonard-bred animals have largely contributed. There was the great head sire in service, Tander Viceroy, champion and grand champion at the American Royal shows in America, the American Royal in Kansas City and the International in Chicago, in 1900-01. Then there was America's cow, sold in Buenos Ayres, Argentina, for the equivalent of $30,000 in gold.

VICTORIA PLANS APPROVED BY MUNICIPALITIES

Several Resolutions Adopted at B.C. Union's Convention

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 17.—At yesterday's session of the annual meeting of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, the following resolutions from Victoria were approved:

"That the Provincial Legislature be requested to amend Subsection (3) of Section 212 of the Municipal Act to read as follows:

"(3) The miles of single track of any railway or tramway company as mentioned in Section 206 (1) (a) shall for the purpose of assessment and taxation be deemed to be land, and the amount of the assessment thereon shall be at the rate of five thousand, two hundred and eighty dollars per mile or fraction thereof of track, whether the same be upon a public highway or privately owned right-of-way. Any privately owned right-of-way shall be assessed in its addition and separately on its actual value as land."

The suggestion was submitted without recommendation from the City Council.

TRADE LICENSES

"That the Provincial Legislature be requested to enact legislation vesting in municipalities, municipal councils and designated officials, absolute and uncontrolled discretion to issue trade licenses to such persons as may be thought fit to be licensed."

BY-LAW BALLOTS

"Whereas, in the matter of the taking of the vote of any municipality upon any by-law requiring the assent of the electors, Section 172 of the Municipal Act requires that 'the poll shall be taken by ballot on the question, aye or no, whether the by-law shall be confirmed';

"And whereas, in the opinion of this council, the use of the words 'Yes' and 'No' on by-law ballots is preferable to the use of the words 'Aye' and 'No,' as now required;

"Be it resolved that this council recommend to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities at its approaching convention the adoption of a resolution favoring the amendment of Section 172 of the Municipal Act by the insertion of the word 'Yes' in lieu of the word 'Aye,' where the same appears in the first line of the said section."

PENSION SCHEME

Another resolution favored enactment of legislation providing for the reduction from seventy years to sixty-five years of the age at which persons become eligible for old-age pension.

Another resolution favored enactment of legislation making it possible by a public charge to be provided for by a common tax rate throughout the Province, hospital boards to be elected and appointed in the same areas and on the same conditions as school boards.

NOT ACCEPTED

Resolutions from Victoria on slinking funds, park exemption, fire motors, school areas and income tax were rejected.

MUNICIPALITIES ASK POWER TO REGULATE SIGNS

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 17.—The Union of B.C. Municipalities at its annual convention here yesterday approved a resolution with regard to municipal control of billboards, signs and hoardings, the proposal being to restore the legislation formerly contained in the general clauses section of the Municipal Act.

"Whereas the construction of signs, billboards and hoardings has become within many municipalities unsightly and offensive;

"And whereas in the year 1927 municipalities were deprived of the power of prohibiting the erection of such:

"Be it therefore resolved that it is in the general interest that such powers shall be restored to the municipalities and sub-section 45 of section 24 of the Municipal Act be enacted accordingly as follows:

"For prohibiting and regulating signs, billboards and hoardings of any and all kinds, and the erection and construction thereof, and for compelling the removal of any sign, billboard, or hoarding, and for regulating scaffolding and the erection and construction thereof."

Extensive Wood Tests

At the forest products laboratories of Canada, Department of the Interior, 70,000 tests have been made to date on one project: "The Physical and Mechanical Properties of Canadian Woods."

MUNICIPALITIES LEADERS DEBATE ORIENTAL ISSUE

B.C. Delegates at Annual Meeting Ask Their Executive to Approach Governments

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 17.—Brought into the discussions of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at its annual convention here by the Mission Ratepayers' Association, the Oriental question in all its contentious phases was threshed out on the floor of the meeting for a lively thirty minutes last night.

In consequence, the Union went even farther than asked by Mission, namely, to seek prohibition of the sale of tax sale lands to Orientals, and referred to the incoming executive the matters of Oriental immigration, ownership of land and competition to take up with the Provincial and Federal authorities with a view to getting all possible relief from present conditions.

The final resolution receiving the endorsement of the meeting was introduced by Alderman R. N. Fraser, of Vancouver, who emphasized the seriousness of the Oriental invasion of all walks of life in British Columbia.

WOULD SHARE BURDEN

Alderman Johnson declared the Chinese Vancouver, president, expressed his desire to see the new executive would do its utmost to get action by the authorities in control. He could see no reason why western Canada alone should shoulder the burden of solving the problem, which was becoming more serious each year.

"Why restrict our action to the Orientals?" asked a representative from Nelson. "We have a problem in connection with other foreigners in our country that is almost equally trying."

Alderman Johnson declared the Chinese now had gained a foothold in practically every city and town in the Province and in all branches of business. If they were prohibited from buying land they must also be prevented from leasing property, if any good results were to be obtained.

Another delegate suggested the exclusion policy of California as the only effective method of dealing with the question.

NEW JOCKEYING SEEN IN FRENCH POLITICAL FIELD

Paris, Oct. 17.—Premier Briand, having set the stakes for the United States of Europe, is these days giving attention to his political fences at home. His "vacation government," as he called it himself when he succeeded Poincaré as Premier, obtained a lease of life that will expire when Parliament meets again October 22. He must then either abandon the helm or whip the opposition into line behind him. The Premier is well known to prefer another majority. He was recognized as a "man of the Left" in the Chamber of Deputies. He wants to remain the "man of the Left" because of his extremely liberal foreign policy; but there are other "men of the Left" who think that if that kind of a Cabinet is formed they are the men to head it—notably Edouard Daladier, president of the Radical Party, and Edouard Herriot, ex-president of that group and ex-Premier.

The Radicals have begun a campaign to obtain power for themselves. The exclusion of most of the groups forming the present majority, on the theory that the negotiations looking toward a federation of Europe require a government distinctly Radical, or Radical and Socialist. In the moderate groups Briand will have to face the opposition of some deputies who will attack the Government for remaining aloof from this year's celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Marne. His action at The Hague and at Geneva will meet with little criticism, but on the question of interior politics, that is to say, "Who shall be at the helm?" he will have to bring all his skill as a politician into play.

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 17.—Appointment of a special committee to discuss with the Government as early as possible proposals to relieve the present burden on the land of education taxation, was authorized yesterday by the Union of B.C. Municipalities at its annual convention here.

On the recommendation of the executive, the convention approved the following committee to approach the Government on education matters: Mayor T. A. Love, Grand Forks; Mayor H. Anson, Victoria; Reeve Tom Reid, Surrey: A. J. Pilkington, Vancouver; Councillor L. Lambert, Burnaby; R. F. Blandy, municipal clerk of Oak Bay, secretary: Alderman E. H. Bridgman, of North Vancouver, incoming president, ex-officio.

Don't Trifle with Bronchitis

There are few "colds in the head" that do not extend into the bronchial tubes and they often develop into bronchial congestion or bronchitis. Many cases become serious and last for weeks and there is always a tendency for bronchitis to become chronic and return again and again. You cannot afford to neglect any cold and should take quick action at the first indication that the cold is entering the bronchial tubes. Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is at once the most prompt and most effective treatment you can secure. Dr. Chase's Syrup has long since proven its exceptional medicinal value and should not be confused with ordinary cough mixtures.

BRUNSWICK RADIO

IN Brunswick's own laboratories the Brunswick Radio engineers and master cabinet makers designed and built a chassis and cabinet that were scientifically planned for perfect reception.

So remarkable was the result that a scientific test was made to demonstrate to others the proof that only a Brunswick has "Studio Quality" Reception.

Your nearest Brunswick dealer has recorded proof of this demonstration made on May 4th, 1929.

Hear this re-created programme—see the beautiful cabinets—compare for "Tone" and "Reception" with any radio.

Scientific proof is convincing.

TO EXAMINE CAUSES OF AIR FAILURES

Major Kingsford-Smith in Southern Cross to Fly
Atlantic

Famous British Flyer Regards Northern Atlantic
Route as Great Adventure

The westward air traverse of the Atlantic from Great Britain to the North American continent, by way of Newfoundland and the northern steamship route in the late spring of next year, is the aim of Major Charles E. Kingsford-Smith, famous British aviator, who sailed for Australia last evening.

Tipping the scale to the receding shores of Albion the "Southern Cross," with over 70,000 miles of world-wide aerial travel to her credit, will be turned westward over the auster and brooding waste of the Atlantic Ocean. This fruit frigate of the air will attempt to achieve the first non-stop flight from London to New York by a heavier-than-air machine.

On board the Aeolus, last night the great British aviator told of his decision to attempt what he considers the hardest task facing the heavier than air machines to-day. Four or five attempts had been made to span the Atlantic by the northern route, and upwards of ten lives had been sacrificed in those attempts, he said.

Two expeditions had actually crossed by the northern route, including the dirigible flights by British and German lighter-than-air machines, one when the German air-craft Bremen, manned by Major Hermann Koehl, Major "Günzburger," and the late Baron Huenefeldt spanned the ocean westward in a low-winged monoplane, that was wrecked on Greveland Island, in the Gulf of the St. Lawrence, at the junction of the Labrador Coast.

The other crossing was that of two of the four United States world flight machines which flew in easy stages from Europe to Iceland, Greenland and thence to this continent, completing a world circuit started on this coast by a traverse of the Pacific Ocean. One machine was wrecked in the tundras of the Alaskan peninsula, and another off the coast of Iceland.

The British dirigible R-34 made the first successful northern crossing in a return journey to this continent and back to her base in England, several years ago. This was followed by flights of the Zeppelin class of dirigible in the southern route, including the aerial voyage of this year, and also the Los Angeles, which was bought from the Germans by the United States Government.

The southern route, the Aeolus, has been successfully navigated by the heavier-than-air machines of several nations, and while longer than the northern route, is recognized as a feasible trade route for aerial navigation.

HIS TASK
To find some solution to the successful aerial navigation of the shorter northern route is the task that Major Kingsford-Smith has set himself, he told a representative of The Times on board the Aeolus last night.

His ship, the Southern Cross, is being reconditioned, after upwards of 70,000 miles of flying, in which the historic flight from the United States to Australia, and a fast flight from Australia to Europe were included.

Careful preparations are to be made for the great adventure, the non-stop flight from London to New York. There would be no special devices used, nor assistance sought from wireless or other direction. The attempt would be made as a feat of straight aerial navigation, with the best found ship that could be prepared for the event.

Definite plans as to the date of take-off and route have not yet been determined, but a London to New York jump would be attempted, he said, as early in the spring of 1930 as weather reports showed such a course possible.

Undismayed by the failure that has attended earlier efforts in which British, French and other machines disappeared completely, the crew of the Southern Cross will attempt its task as a voyage of scientific aerial discovery.

WHAT MUST BE SOLVED
What is it that has sent four or five machines to their end, with the loss of gallant lives? Is there any meteorological reason why the northern and short convenient route between Europe and America is impracticable by air? These are some of the questions that the Southern Cross and her crew are aiming to solve.

Major Kingsford-Smith said he did not believe there would be any undue hazard in the undertaking. With a good machine, good weather, and a wait for favorable weather, the northern route over the Atlantic should be feasible, he believes. On the other hand many had failed, and the gallant commander of the first Pacific-Australian aerial voyage does not minimize the risk attendant on such an adventure, nor question the capabilities and audacity of those who set out so gallantly with the same end in view.

Slight of stature, barely turned thirty, for all his achievements, Major Kingsford-Smith is a quietly spoken and extremely modest man. During the Great War, though he could not be induced to talk about it himself, it is known he saw distinguished service with the Royal Flying Corps, where he made a name for himself in the hard realities of aerial fighting. Now, as a modern knight of the air, he has set for himself the solution of questions to widen man's knowledge of what is possible by aircraft in a practical way.

On his present mission Major Kingsford-Smith will assist in extension of commercial flying in Australia, with which he is connected, and will leave Australia again in a few months to begin preparations for his great adventure. He is accompanied on his present voyage by Miss Beris Kingsford-Smith, a niece.

WHITNEY LETTER

By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited

New York, Oct. 17.—Whitney of the Wall Street Financial Service to-day says:

SECONDARY BOTTOM
ESTABLISHED

"The decline in yesterday's market brings it to the point of completion in the secondary reaction to which your attention was called at the beginning of the week. After the initial decline two weeks ago, a strong rally carried the industrial averages up 27 points. Coming within a point of retreating one-half of the initial decline, this point having been reached at the close of last week, and constituting a most logical place for the secondary reaction to set in. With the decline from Monday having in turn gone back over half of the 27-point rally, we now hit the logical place for the secondary reaction to terminate. In other words what has been expected, has been witnessed, your attention was called at the beginning of the week, and the rally, which you were told would not participate in the secondary decline, have absolutely refused to do so.

"In yesterday's market those who have lost their perspective were too busy selling stock to notice the American Petroleum Institute's report which pointed out what is undoubtedly the most bullish development of the year on the oil, by showing that the oil barrel is selling at 100 cents, which is the Oklahoma field is following the lead of California has already resulted in a decline in daily gross production of almost 50,000 barrels for the last week or to a figure approximately 100,000 barrel less than the daily production.

"The rally are only a few days off from their September 1 earnings reports, which will show why they have dried up on all declines as well as why they going higher. There is no change in the previously expressed opinion that these two groups will feature the next upswing, nor is there any change in the advice to centre your commitments in them. Money will begin to decline again to-day, and do not think it makes much difference what the brokers' loans show after the close.

COMMENT

"While almost any reasonably sound stock is entitled to, and headed for higher prices, direct attention particularly to Atchafalaya, Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Erie and the market.

"In the oil, leadership has been and will remain in Standard of New Jersey, but that does not mean that we cannot make correspondingly large profits in Royal Dutch, Standard of New York, Pan American and Houston.

"U.S. Rubber has been prevented by general market conditions from reflecting the benefits of the 10 per cent advance in tire prices, but will begin to do so without further delay.

"Pullman is refusing to react, simply because of the high character of buying in it which is predicated on the expectation of prices well across the 100 level.

"Use any prices within two or three of last night's close to buy Johns Manville and Byers Pipe, both of which on bottom and scheduled for new advances.

"Corn Products and Timken have both made new highs on the recent reaction, but are going considerably higher and should not be sold."

New York, Oct. 17.—Call money easier, high 7, low 6, ruling rate 7, close 6.

SHOW LITTLE NET
CHANGE FOR DAY

New York, Oct. 17.—At the close of the market to-day the Dow Jones average of thirty industrials stood at 311.86, up .18 points; and for twenty rails up .12, up .28.

New York, Oct. 17.—Brokers' loans for the week show an increase of $88,000,000, official figures issued this afternoon show.

Increase in the total of loans to-day did not cause surprise, as undigested securities are believed to exist in considerable volume.

New York, Oct. 17.—The Wall Street Journal this afternoon pointed out that the majority of preferred stocks dealt in the last two days showed advances with increasing activity in the bond market. This may be the first sign of an important shifting of funds from the year-end into fixed interest-bearing securities.

New York, Oct. 17.—Stocks continued unsettled to-day, dipping early, then firming in the latter part of the session.

U. S. Steel opened at 31 1/2, eased off to 29 1/2, and then shot up to 29 1/2 before the close.

There were five to ten-point recoveries in many of the leading public utility favorites, such as General Electric, Standard Gas, Westinghouse, Western Union, International Telephone and A.T. & T.

International Combustion from a high for the day of 34 1/2, headed downward for a new low for the year at 28 1/2.

Call money eased from 7 to 6 per cent.

"It is now reasonably clear that on the recent break, investment trusts and other large interests either were not heavy buyers, or were content to accept moderate profits on the subsequent recovery and it appears that the general rally was essentially technical and did not greatly strengthen the general speculative condition," The World says.

MIRROR ADVICE

New York, Oct. 17 (B.C. Bond).—Wall Street Mirror to-day issued the following to its clients:

"The market is facing another severe test with prices getting down around the lower made October 4. The test will be whether these lows can be held, or whether they are to be broken. Sentiment regarding the market is quite bearish.

"It is clear of the market until it can show definitely whether it will be able to hold.

"Some switching from the public utilities into the rails and the oils is heard. It can be definitely stated that the very best sort of buying is making its appearance in both Standard Oil of New Jersey and Royal Dutch.

"Corn Products is scheduled to be one of the big stocks on the side of the advance as soon as the present uncertainty has disappeared.

"Crosley Radio has made another new low for the year and looks lower."

ROYAL DUTCH POSSIBILITIES

The Wall Street Journal this afternoon said that some market commentators see in Royal Dutch possibilities comparable to those of Standard Oil of New Jersey. Its business is worldwide and, according to trade talk, the company may acquire the foreign rights to the hydro-generation oil refining, on which Standard Oil of New Jersey holds the American rights. On its $3.22 annual dividend, Royal Dutch at current prices yields 8 per cent, which is considered attractive.

UTILITIES UNLOADED

The Journal of Commerce to-day declares that the general public has regarded the decision of the Massachusetts Utilities Commission in refusing to permit the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston to split its shares four for one, as a sign that the utilities may find public reaction a factor barring them from increasing earnings as rapidly as many of the stock prices would seem to indicate.

The fact that carloadings for last week fell behind those for the same week of 1928 was seized upon for ammunition by bears in their drive on stock prices, but experts agree that the dominant tendency is entirely due to the restricted movement of grain, and as such it is but a temporary condition. The Herald-Tribune says.

The New York American says that the rails have held out so much because of demand, but because of the fact that they offered little attraction to such professional selling as was witnessed last week for Reading is attributed to railroad interests.

SAYS UTILITIES TOO HIGH

In connection with the break of International Combustion to new lows to-day, reports have it that official reorganization of the company is impossible.

Liquidation of long stock, according to H. P. Bliss, has been playing a more important part in the market situation of the utilities than short selling. During the last few months utility stocks generally have gone to price levels where they seemed generously $5 discounted, not only present earnings power, but also growth in profits for some time to come. And on that theory the present readjustment seems quite logical.

It is also said that during the coming regular session in Congress the general power situation may be a subject for searching investigation, but it is hardly to be believed that drastic legislation will result, even granting considerable agitation.

"Completion of the price readjustment in the utilities may bring relief to the stability of the market in general," Mr. Bliss says. "When signs appear of an abatement of selling or liquidation in the direction of the utilities, we believe that special situations in individual stocks will again come to the front in a constructive way, and, in our opinion, the up trend in such issues as Corn Products, Timken and United Fruit has been interrupted, not definitely halted."

SEE NO REASONS FOR MARKET DROP

New York, Oct. 17 (B.C. Bond).—Professor Irving in a New York speech says that stock prices have reached what looks like a permanent high plateau. He says he expects to see the market at higher levels within a few months.

London, Oct. 17.—Chairman Mitchell of the National City Bank of New York, who is now in London, says the sees no reason for the predicted end-of-the-year slump in Wall Street. He declares that many leading industrial securities are now at sound and conservative levels, and predicts the continued grouping of big banks.

Since their arrival here the four aviators have fitted wheels on their plane, "Land of the Soviets," replacing the pontoons that were used on the flight across the Pacific from Siberia, along the Aleutian Islands, and along the British Columbia coast. From Oakland they hope to fly to New York by way of Chicago.

EIGHT LOSE LIVES IN SEATTLE HOTEL FIRE

Frank Harshfield, assistant fire marshal, said the fire apparently started on a landing of the stairway between the first and second floors. The flames swept quickly to a third floor, then blew back to the street level. The dry rotter of the old building burned like tinder and the fire spread with great speed.

BODIES FOUND

Bodies of the victims were found in several parts of the building. Some of them were still in bed, others were sprawled on the floor in front of doors that had tried to reach. One was found underneath a bed, where the man had sought to escape the smoke, and the body of another was found in a chair in a hallway.

SURVIVOR'S STORY

From his cot in a hospital, Chester A. Moore, who received severe burns, told a graphic story of the fire.

"I woke up about 4 o'clock," he said. "There was no fire then, but later I smelled smoke and got out of bed. I opened the door of our room and dashed out. I dashed back to get my clothes, but only took time to slip into my trousers, and Charles J. Dusebout, my room mate, and I jumped through the fire."

In the hall they saw the Japanese proprietor running around his kimono and carrying a chair. He was trying to reach a fire alarm on the second floor which was too high to reach while standing on the floor. The men then broke a window and climbed down a fire escape. Dusebout was not injured, but Moore was taken to a hospital.

LIST OF THOSE HURT

The injured include:

Ben Oberg, sixty-three, a cook.

Arlington Wash.

Mrs. K. Mayeda, thirty-seven, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, fracture of one leg.

K. Mayeda, forty-one, proprietor.

David Rishel, thirty-nine, a dishwasher.

William Longstaff, fifty-five, a dishwasher.

Carl Zimmerman, sixty-seven, farm worker.

John Miller, fifty-nine, a railroad worker.

Chester A. Moore, twenty-two, Peninsula, Fla., shipyard worker.

Frederick J. Mart, fifty-five.

Robert Elms, nineteen, Olg Harbor, Wash.

Joe McNamee, fireman, broken shoulder and possibly a fracture of the skull.

An unconscious man was registered at the City Hospital only as "John Doe Whiskers."

Several of the injured were in serious condition from smoke, burns and shock, and were barely able to give their names.

Henry Marsh, sixty, laborer.

Lawrence Larson, forty-seven, fireman, overcome by smoke.

$1,000,000 RUM RING IN EAST U.S. BROKEN UP

Preparations for the raids began six months ago, when an intercepted message was decoded. From that other messages information was gleaned which led to the raids.

When the federal agents entered the radio station at 4:30 p.m. yesterday, the "zero hour" set for the raids, they found Malcolm McManis, the operator, at his key. He was arrested for operating an unlicensed station. A federal operator familiar with the "smugglers' code" then began sending messages by which the raiders hoped to lure a rum ship off Montauk Point into a trap where a coastguard patrol boat lay in wait.

TUNNELS FOUND

The arsenal was located in a mansion formerly owned by Oscar Hammerstein Jr. Its two rooms were fitted like a club. In the basement the raiders found tunnels leading to underground vaults in which liquor was stored and a number of machine guns and a quantity of small arms were hidden.

The cupola on top of the mansion was equipped with telescopes and apparently was used as a lookout tower from where the smugglers could watch for their craft.

trucks hauling potatoes. It was also stated Chinese were making a concerted effort to break the law, even setting aside part of the proceeds from the sale of potatoes to provide a fund to engage lawyers to fight their cases.

SHIPMENTS ARE LARGE

J. E. Guinet stated practically all the shippers in this district had paid licenses. Eighty-five cars had left the valley, fifteen going to the coast, and it was estimated about 125 more cars would be shipped. The control price was $45 for B grade and $50 for A grade.

SEED POTATOES

The meeting went on record in favor of seed potatoes not being included in the grading by the control board. It was thought that as seed potatoes were under the control of the Federal Government, and as the growers were experienced men, it would be better to leave the grading with the growers.

The Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Dewey Graves
Author of "Rich Girl—Poor Girl," etc.

"I would be worse than gambling with you," she retorted. "I should be the most miserable person on earth."

"For that I really should show you no consideration whatsoever," Brent retorted, thinking it would be a pleasure to lay her spirit low by telling her the truth about the Cunningham inheritance.

His better judgment held him back. He knew full well that she would not consent to carry on the fraud, and while there was hope that he might win her he did not want to jeopardize his chance at the money Cyril Cunningham had left her.

"I want no consideration from you," Helen said. "I wish you would leave me alone."

"Won't you drive back to the city with me?" Brent asked. "Your friend won't miss you—that is if Ennis is available for the day. We'll lunch in the Oval Room at the Ritz and do a business. Come on, Helen. Don't be a fool and mope around here because of a young ass who's an even worse chaser than the much abused 'average man'."

"Please go," Helen begged, and turned to walk back to the house.

Brent followed in silence. And soon afterward took his departure.

But Helen was not to be rid of him. He telephoned twice a day, sent many gifts and called three or four times a week.

She knew, on these occasions, that he was seeking to discover just how far Shalimar had got with Bob Ennis. Helen herself did not know. Shalimar had ceased to tell her at the end of the first week. Shalimar thought, Helen was encouraging her, so she turned to helping Bob forget her with a will.

Not that he was succeeding—not at all. He knew now that any attempt to do so was only a farce. But Helen did not know this. She drew away from Shalimar as much as possible, and never mentioned Bob when she could avoid doing so.

Eva Ennis was furious. But Helen would not let her talk about Shalimar. She simply shut herself behind a barrier of aloofness that Eva could not penetrate.

At best Eva's efforts had not been wholehearted. For she was concerned with a cross of her own. She had been forced to accept the fact that Brent was avoiding her. A few times, on her visits to New York, she had stayed away from him of her own will. But lately she had been unable to keep from calling his apartment as soon as she got to the city. Invariably the answer had been the same. Mr. Brent was out.

And she had few opportunities to see him at Bramblewood. Helen was too unhappy to be sociable, and Eva she asked. To get away from Bramblewood and her guest as a ch as she could was incentive enough to make Brent's girl acceptable.

"When is it?" Eva asked.

"To-night," Brent told her.

"Yes," Eva said to Helen.

And that night Eva didn't go home. It was late when they returned to Yonkers. The chauffeur who had accompanied them to town, because Helen felt she might not want to drive on the return trip, found some congenial friends while his employer was in the garden, and when he showed up something more than tardy, he called Helen aside.

She gave him some money and told him to take the train to Yonkers. And when she and Eva were just about a mile from Bramblewood they got a flat tire.

"Let's wait for someone to help us," Eva suggested, thinking it possible to harm to her second best evening dress. Helen was not concerned with any such worry.

A few minutes later, while she was struggling with the heavy tire, and Eva was helping as best she could, a car approached, caught them in the glare of its headlights, slowed up and stopped.

"Hello," a familiar voice called. "Wait here!"

But it was not from the owner of the voice that help came.

"Here, give me that," someone else said gruffly, and Helen turned to find Bob beside her. Shalimar remained in his car.

Without a word she stepped aside and relinquished the task to him. When it was finished she thanked him with a quiet dignity that held just enough and not too much of gratitude. Then she said that if he and Shalimar were returning to Bramblewood they'd all have supper.

In her mind, as well as in the memory of another invitation to supper, Helen turned quickly to get into her car, while Bob stood in the road, asking himself if she'd ever cared for him.

He wanted to tell her he wouldn't eat a bite of her food if it choked him, but he said nothing and Shalimar sang out that they'd be along in a minute.

"Why did you do that?" Eva broke out, unable to restrain herself.

"It will be—fun," Helen answered, but she said nothing when she passed beneath a light that she had caught her underlip hard between her teeth.

Suddenly, as they drove through the gateway at Bramblewood Helen said: "Eva, stay with me to-night. I've got to talk to somebody."

CHAPTER XXXVII

Nothing exciting happened at supper. Eva clamped her lips together and opened them precisely for the sole purpose of partaking of the creamed mushrooms that Helen had prepared.

Bob, with his eyes, which Helen avoided looking at as much as possible. He had, she thought, a mean if he didn't put it into words.

She herself tried to keep the conversation going by talking of the show at the garden, but Shalimar kept in to tell of the place where she and Bob had spent the evening.

Once when Shalimar reached out a hand and laid it possessively on one of Eva's hands.

The gesture seemed somehow to upset Bob too. He looked across the table at Eva. "Let's go home, sis," he said, "you look tired."

Eva jumped to her feet without delay. "Do you mind if we run, Helen?" she begged. "I am tired."

"So am I," Shalimar chimed in. "Bob, you simply exhaust me." Very prettily she suppressed a yawn, though her eyes were wide awake.

It seemed to be, to anyone who was interested in reading their expression, sharing a secret with Bob.

Helen appealed to Eva. "You promised to stay here to-night," she said.

She hesitated for half a moment. Would Bob go at once if she stayed, she wondered? For Helen's sake she wanted to break up the party. Any one with any sense at all could see that Helen was on the ragged edge, she thought, furious with her brother for having come at all. But Helen would not have asked her to stay unless she really needed a confidant, Eva knew.

"I did promise Helen to stay all night," she said to Bob. "But I think you'd better go home now. You know mother is worrying about our staying out."

"You know what's worrying her," Bob retorted meaningly, but was instantly contrite when he saw an expression of acute mental suffering flood his sister's face.

"I'll go," he added quickly. "If you'll check me out, Miss Nellie."

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggly And Red Riding Hood

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggly was hopping through the woods, looking for an adventure, he heard a noise in the bushes and at once the rabbit gentleman, crouched down and kept very still. For that, you know, is what animals do to save themselves from enemies who would hurt them.

Uncle Wiggly became as still and quiet as if frozen, or as if he had turned into that china rabbit which he bought for an ink wolf, with red ink in one ear and black in the other.

But as Uncle Wiggly crouched under a sassafras plant, keeping very still and quiet, he saw coming along the path a kind old Grandmother rabbit carrying on one paw a little basket.

"Hello," a familiar voice called. "Wait here!"

But it was not from the owner of the voice that help came.

"Here, give me that," someone else said gruffly, and Helen turned to find Bob beside her. Shalimar remained in his car.

Without a word she stepped aside and relinquished the task to him. When it was finished she thanked him with a quiet dignity that held just enough and not too much of gratitude. Then she said that if he and Shalimar were returning to Bramblewood they'd all have supper.

Now I might tell you that while in most stories Little Red Riding Hood was a girl, and her Grandmother an old lady, in Woodland, where Uncle Wiggly lived, Red Riding Hood was a little rabbit and her Grandmother was an old lady bunny. But otherwise it's just the same.

So Uncle Wiggly and the Grandmother rabbit began hopping through the woods looking for the lost Little Red Riding Hood bunny and in the basket was a nice carrot lunch for her.

"I thought," mumbled the Grandmother rabbit, "it would be a change if I took Riding Hood something to eat instead of her bringing me some. It's time that story was changed."

"Quite," agreed Uncle Wiggly. So he hopped along and pretty soon the Grandmother rabbit cried:

"There she is! I see her red hood!" But it was only a red leaf fluttering in the air. Then they hopped along a little farther and pretty soon, all of a sudden, they saw something red and there was the little rabbit girl, in her scarlet cloak and hood, sleeping under a big fern.

"Oh, Grandma!" cried Little Red Riding Hood as they awakened her. "I'm so sorry I'm late with your lunch. But I've been waiting for the wolf to come and eat me, and I'm glad."

Now if the readers will pull a tooth out of the comb so it won't ache in the night, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and the clover pillow.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been engaged to a young man for four years and his attitude toward me is making me a nervous wreck. He is very arrogant, has an I-know-it-all manner, and he likes to insult me before people to show how superior he is. I have to draw well in my job, so he continually tells me that when we are married I will never handle his pay envelope. He never brings me even so much as a box of candy, and just before the evening has passed he pulls out a little memorandum book and writes down his expenses, which probably never exceeds the cost of a dollar for me. Last summer he insisted on my spending my vacation with him and his family, where I was perfectly miserable. So I have refused to go back this summer, which has made him very angry.

I have no trust or confidence in anything my fiance says or does, but I have been going with him so long that I have lost all my other friends and am afraid I will be terribly lonely if I let him go. I love him, but I am afraid I would have the life of a dog if I married him because he is so small and mean and selfish in all of his dealings with me. What shall I do?

Answer—If you have even one lobe of a brain, it should tell you what to do. Give this chap up. Refuse to marry him as you value your happiness. Otherwise you let yourself in for a lifetime of misery.

He has shown you exactly how he will treat you and what you have to expect. He will never show you any tenderness, kindness nor consideration. On the contrary, he will lord it over you and he will crush your spirit and break your heart and you will become one of the meek, cowed wives who has to ask her husband every time she takes a long breath. He will be a tightwad who will begrudge you the very food you eat and you will never have another pretty frock or a decent hat after your touseau wears out. Do you see anything very alluring in that prospect? I throw not.

Be sure of this, Dixie: Every man treats his sweetheart better than he does his wife. When he goes a-courting he puts on his company manners as well as his company clothes and he is more polite, more deferential, more flattering to her than he will be when he has her for keeps, and she has to stand for any sort of line of conversation and conduct that he hands out.

Before marriage many a man is so gallant that he will not let a girl so much as lift a book and he tenderly assists her up a two-inch step, but after marriage he stalks ahead of her and leaves her to carry the baby and all the bundles and bags, and he expects her to get up in the morning and make the fire.

Before marriage many a man is so generous he lavishes presents on a girl and racks his brains to find new places of amusement to take her, but after marriage he never brings her a gumdrop, or takes her to the movies. Before marriage many a man spends his time telling a girl how beautiful and clever she is, but after he marries her he devotes his leisure to knocking her faults, and when she expresses an opinion he tells her to shut up, she doesn't know what she is talking about.

That is why a lot of girls marry the wrong men. The man has led them to believe he was one thing while he was quite another, and so the deceived girls have a right to our pity. They didn't know what they were doing.

But you have had your warning. Your young man has shown his quality, and if you marry him in the face of all the danger signals he has hung out you will deserve what you get. Of course, if you break off your engagement to this young man you will be lonely for a little while, but it won't take long for the boys to find out that you are in the running again, and you will have plenty of dates. You are still young and pretty and attractive, and there are certainly better fish in the sea than this poor one you have hung.

So my earnest advice to you is to break off your engagement to this prig and go off on your summer vacation alone. You have no idea how free and happy you will feel when you realize that you have had the courage to save yourself from a lifetime of petty tyrannies, and that you won't have to stand being insulted by a little egotist who thinks he is the whole universe.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a mother and I beg you to write something about how wrong it is for young girls to go out with the married men in the offices where they work. I have two young daughters and the men they work with are always taking them out, and telling the girls that they made mistakes when they married and if they were only free that they are the ones they would love and marry. But these men go on living with their wives and are apparently on the best terms with them and they wouldn't have their wives find out for the world that they are taking the girls out and giving them good times. Don't you think it shameful for these men to mislead the girls?

A MOTHER.

Answer—I think the married man who indulges in flirtations with girls in his office is a cad because he wrongs two women. He wrongs his wife, to whom he is unfaithful, and he wrongs the girl whom he tempts into doing things she should not do for the sake of a good time. And he wrongs her still more if he wins her heart and makes her fall in love with him when he knows that he can never marry her and that all he can give her is a shameful liaison, or a life of weary waiting, in which she will eat out her soul with longing for what she can never have.

There can be no fate more miserable than that of the girl who hopelessly loves a married man who has no intention whatever of divorcing his wife and marrying her. She is the woman who gives all and gets nothing in return. She is the beggar that has to be satisfied with the crumbs of affection that drop from his table.

She knows all there is to know of baffled longing and desire. She knows what it is to drink the bitter up of jealousy to its dregs when she sees his wife having the attention, the honor, the position, the name, the money that she feels should be hers. Any man who would willfully subject a woman to that torture for the sake of gratifying his own vanity has not one drop of human pity in his whole system.

But let's not lay all the blame on the men, Mother. If your daughters are running around with married men, it is because they want to do so. They haven't been kidnapped. They haven't been shanghaied into going on wild parties. They go because many married men are very attractive, but mainly because married men who throw wild parties for girls have more money to spend than poor young chaps who are just trying to get a start in the world.

Of course, you can't think such a thing of your own darling little daughters, but it is the truth nevertheless. They are little gold-diggers and they like to ride in fine cars and drink champagne and have pretty things given them and that is why they go with married men. They could refuse if they wanted to.

And don't believe that any modern girl is taken in by any man's hard-luck story, and that the reason she goes out with him is because she is trying to comfort him. His troubles are not her troubles. Besides, that is such an old approach that it makes her laugh.

So try to make your girls see what a foolish thing they are doing in running around with married men and smothering their good name for the sake of a few parties. It doesn't pay. It is selling their birthright for a mess of pottage.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a perfect husband, good, kind, loving, generous, everything that one could wish in a man, but I am very much in love with another man and he promises me everything and says he can't live without me. He even says he will take my children and be good to them, but what shall I do? I love both of these men and can't decide between them.

BROWN EYES.

Answer—Well, Brown Eyes, you seem to have a moral astigmatism that prevents your distinguishing between right and wrong, so I should advise you to get some spectacles that will enable you to see things more clearly. Perhaps then you could see that you have no right to take a good man's children from him, even if you leave him yourself. Personally, I don't think a man loses much when he loses an unfaithful wife, but his children are the core of his heart and he has a right at least to them.

But if you have a perfect husband you had better stick to a good thing. They are not so common and, anyway, you have a lot better chance of being happy with him than you would with a philanderer who goes around making love to silly married women.

Great growth of cities is forecast for the next few months, and artistic beauty as well as lavish expenditures has been indicated by the stars.

And persons and those slightly past youth should benefit under this star, which seems to present added respect for opinions and cherished traditions.
The planetary government should benefit farmers, for there is an aspect bringing them into close sympathy with government heads as well as bankers.
This should be a favorable rule under which to seek employment. It seems to forecast good luck in finding the right opening. It is a fortunate time to resign officeholders of political promises, but bad for those who are aggressive in pushing claims to recognition.

The later hours of the day are not auspicious for large mercantile transactions. Deception is more prevalent under this star than it is ordinarily.
Astrologers foretell for transatlantic steamship companies many changes, reorganizations and new routes.
Minority criticisms of political policies may be frequent at this time, owing to a certain aspect of Mars, it is foretold.
Women will be most contented to-day if they pursue purely feminine activities. Beauty quests seem to be lucky.

The stars prophesy that youth will be restored to women by novel processes soon to be discovered.
Earthquakes again are prognosticated for various places in the United States, but they are not likely to be serious.
The coming winter is to be marked by weather variations of amazing character, accompanied by many human hardships as well as property losses, astrologers forecast. Persons whose birthday it is should strive for method and strict policies in business affairs through the coming year. Some confusion may disturb the financial trend.

Children born on this day probably will be clever in creative work, shrewd in judgment and able to win success.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Two Days and a Night without Rest

A big underground telephone cable was damaged—through no fault of the Telephone Company. As a result, 600 Vancouver telephones were out of order.

With only an occasional intermission to catch a bite of food, cable splicers worked all that day, that night, and part of the next day—a total stretch of 33 hours—in order to restore service in the quickest possible time. They were down in the damp and cold of manholes, with inclement weather to add to their discomforts. But telephone service came first.

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Get a small bottle to try. Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggist. AT THE THEATRES

COMEDY ROMANCE WITH RICHARD DIX AT THE CAPITOL

Richard Dix's latest comedy romance, "The Love Doctor," is the feature attraction at the Capitol Theatre. This all-talking production shows Dix as a wealthy young doctor who is having a hard time to get his initial patient. A confirmed bachelor, he nevertheless hires a pretty girl, whom he has met abroad, as his nurse, and shortly gets a patient. This is Morgan Parley, son of a social leader, whose ailment Dix diagnoses as Love, the object thereof being Miriam Seegar, a society butterfly flapper, who cannot see Parley because of her infatuation for Dix.

Dix sends Parley to the country with his pretty nurse, whom he instructs in the first three rules by which she will aid Parley in capturing Miriam's heart, which, needless to say, are not new. However, they work to perfection, after Miriam, visiting the country home in chase of the doctor, has entrapped him in a compromising situation and forced him to promise marriage.

June Collyer, as the nurse, is very charming and renders her lines in an excellent manner.

"DEADWOOD COACH" FEATURES MIX ON COLUMBIA SCREEN

A glance at the cast of "The Deadwood Coach," which Tom Mix is appearing in now at the Columbia Theatre, from Clarence Mulford's novel, "The Outlaw," would indicate that another cinematic battle of the century impends. Sid Jordan has been cast in the role of Sneed. And that means action!

"The Deadwood Coach" will mark the eighth time Jordan, who is a villain of the first water, has had it out with Tom. And, according to Mix himself, Sid is getting tougher every time he tackles him.

Tom has seven decisions over Jordan and "The Deadwood Coach" script calls for another, but there is no question about the fact that when the hero meets the villain this time the fur will fly fast and furious. This time it is said to be better than ever.

GREAT FILM DRAMA, "NOAH'S ARK," NOW COLISEUM FEATURE

Warner Brothers' great film spectacle, "Noah's Ark," will be the screen attraction at the Coliseum Theatre for the remaining three days this week. While the title would suggest that the story is a tale of Bible days, the picture portrays modern life with a background of antiquated times.

A cast of more than 10,000 people was employed in "Noah's Ark," and Warner Brothers allotted a thirty-eight-acre tract to construct the setting on which to carry through the tremendous project. "Noah's Ark" is said to be truly gigantic in its proportions, and to possess a story of intense interest.

The moving and human story of "Noah's Ark" was written by Darryl Francis Zanuck, and in it he has sounded all the human emotions. Michael Curtiz, famed at home and abroad as the director of great spectacles, was in charge of production. The work covered a period of more than three years and the cost was over $2,000,000.

MARTINDEL HAS MADE COOKING FAVORITE HOBBY

Cooking is a pet hobby of Edward Martindel. When Sunday afternoon rolls around a group of his friends usually show up. Martindel vanishes, and when next he appears, there is a meat fit for kings in his wake, cooked by himself and served by his Japanese servant. Edward Martindel is prominent in support of Dorothy Sebastian and Larry Kent in the Tiffany-Blair picture, "The Devil's Apple Tree," showing at the Playhouse Theatre.

FAMOUS ACTOR OF STAGE HAS ROLE IN "MADAME X"

Richard Carle, former stage star of "Mary's Lamb" and other Broadway musical comedy hits, furnishes comic relief in the screen's latest vivid talking drama, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmation of "Madame X" now at the Dominion Theatre. He does a character part of an old servant in a French hotel in inimitable manner. The new picture is an elaborate adaptation of the celebrated stage play, with Ruth Chatterton, Lewis Stone, Raymond Hackett and others of note, directed by Lionel Barrymore. The screen version of the famous stage play was prepared by Willard Mack, famous playwright.

It introduces a new technique, a combination of those of the speaking stage and the silent films, one which greatly speeds up dialogue and action.

COCONUT GROVE BAND TO APPEAR IN "STREET GIRL"

One of the most famous orchestras in the country will entertain patrons of the Capitol Theatre all next week when "Street Girl," the all-talking and all-musical Radio Picture featuring Betty Compson, opens.

Gus Arnheim and his Coconut Grove Ambassadors, now playing at the Ambassadors Club in Paris, appears in several of the night club sequences of the Radio Picture. Four musical numbers, written originally for "Street Girl," are being featured by Arnheim and his band as they play for the dancers in the Paris club, and in each town "Street Girl" has appeared this season, these tunes have quickly become favorites with local orchestras.

John Harron, Jack-Oakie, Ned Sparks, Joseph Cavithorn, Ivan Lebedeff and Eddie Kane head the supporting cast, which Wesley Ruggles directed. The story tells of the adventures of a little group of musicians in a cafe of New York's "Little Hungary."

Five special concerts at the Empress Hotel this season, November 14, December 11, January 23, March 28, April 17.

PLAY MANAGER VISITOR HERE

Lee Parvin Arrives to Make Arrangements For Staging of "Front Page"

Lee Parvin, business manager of the Jed Harris production of the newspaper play, "The Front Page," was in Victoria to-day completing arrangements with Cliff Denham for the appearance of this widely-known comedy by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur at the Royal Theatre, next Tuesday and Wednesday.

"The Front Page" is a bombastic comedy of one Hildy Johnson, star reporter, who is attempting to shake off the spell of the newspaper business. It has proven the biggest dramatic success in years in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles, where it enjoyed runs of considerable length.

Mr. Parvin has been coming to Victoria for a good many years, and was last here in a business way with "The Desert Song." He came right back after the close of that tour to spend his vacation with his wife at Deep Cove.

The newspaper reporter, as pictured in dramas, is a strange and fearful character. He is usually a young juvenile with highly penciled eyebrows and a swanky handkerchief in his outer pocket, much given to profuse note-taking, vivid love-making, and ever sent on a scoop of such proportions that it will jerk him from his penniless obscurity to an opulent editorship.

In a word, he is as unlike any working reporter as it is possible for one male to be unlike another. The authors of these plays, and the gentlemen who direct them, in their praiseworthy desire to do justice by the boys who seek out the news, make of them perfect prizes in the eyes of big capitalists and running down bloodthirsty criminals who have befuddled the police. They have, in the past, so glorified the reporter that no honest newspaperman can look upon a stage reporter without a wince and a blush.

Jed Harris promises that this procedure is all changed in "The Front Page," the newspaper farce which he will present at the Royal Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday. This play is written by gentlemen who know something of newspaper work, its frequent jawiness, its everlasting repetition and its false and surface glamour.

U.S. Conscription Bill Is Opposed

Toronto, Oct. 17.—Without dissent or debate the American Federation of Labor yesterday at its annual convention here expressed its opposition to a measure pending before the United States Congress for universal conscription in time of war.

It adopted a committee report declaring it to be "desirable as an evidence of good faith to the world that the American people shall, at least for the present, refrain from war-like preparations in the enactment of legislation."

Conscription of labor in wartime, it added, would mean that "trades unions would be dissolved."
